

15

Sauvie Island Loop

Distance	12.5 mi. (20km.)
Difficulty	8 (Most difficult = 10)
Beginning Point	Parking lot to left of bridge
Conditions	(Best Conditions = 10) Aesthetics - 7 Bad weather running - 6 Auto traffic - 5
Running Surface	Paved road

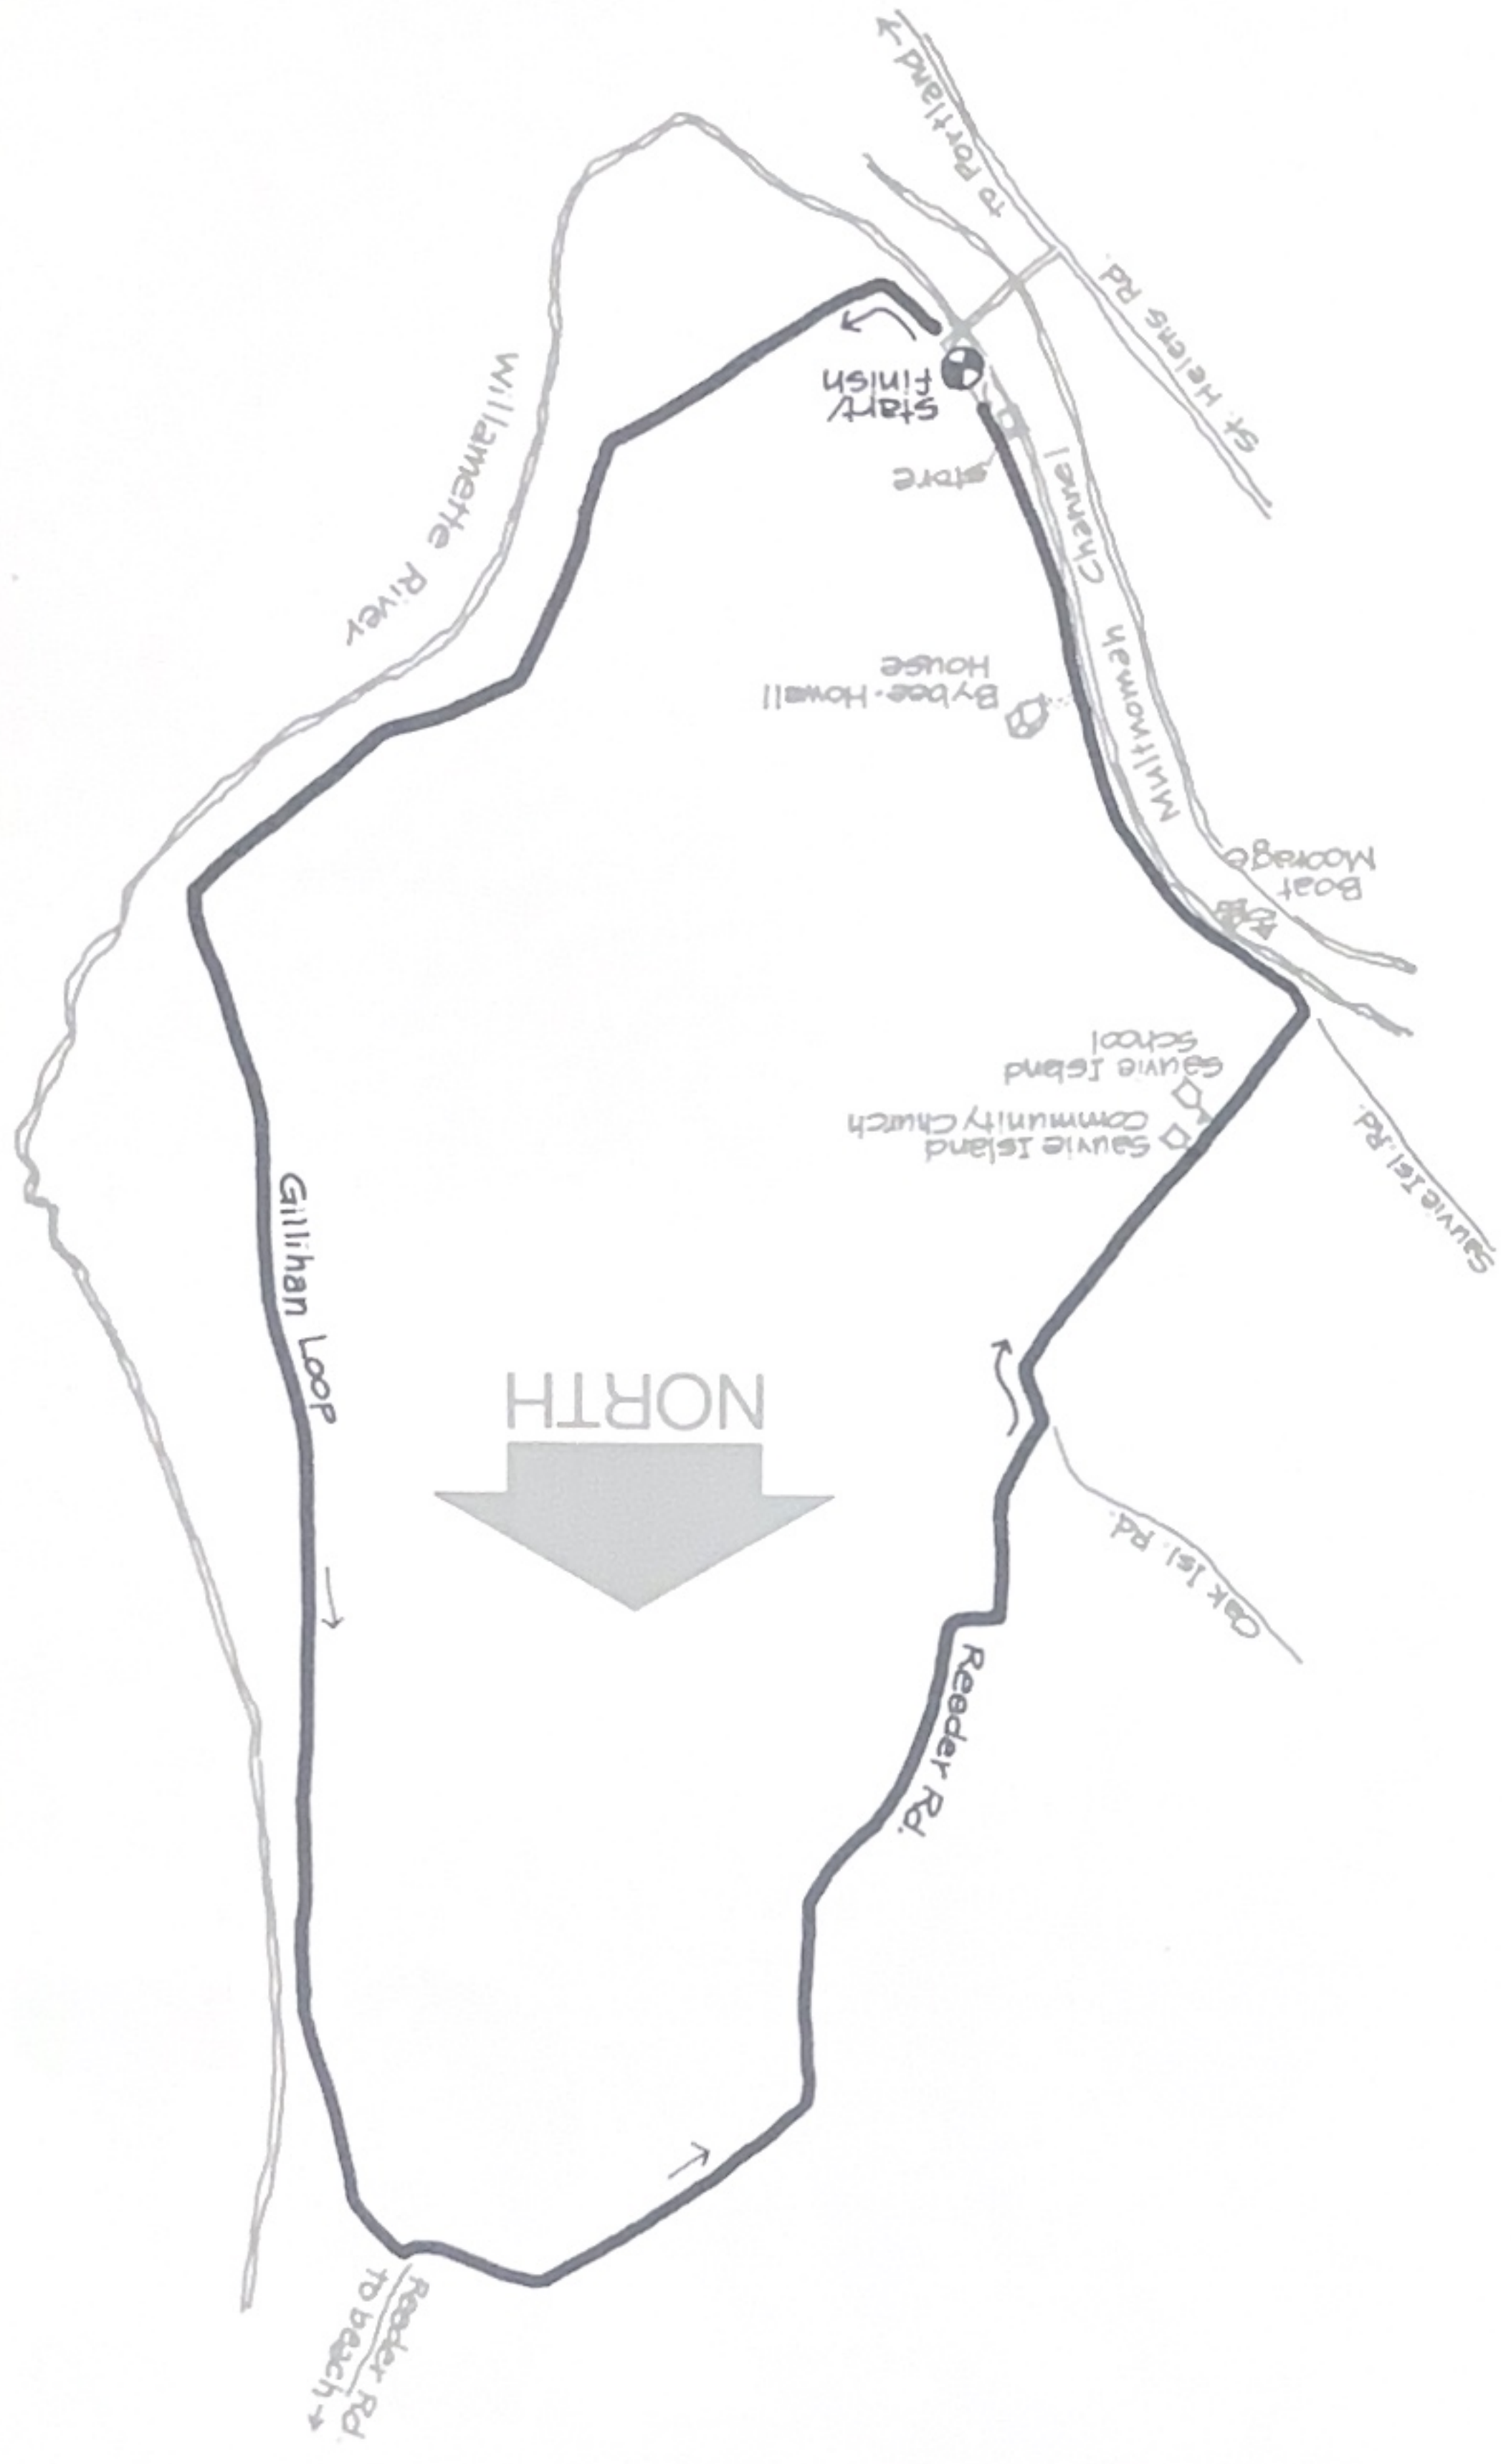

This is one of the popular training runs for the Portland and Seaside marathons. It's flat as a pancake, makes a nice, easy-to-follow circle, and offers a near half-marathon distance. Whether you are marathon training or not, Sauvie Island is a fine place to test yourself with some distance without the pain of hills. A few cautions: there's no water available so you'll have to stow your own. Also, the roads are narrow and get a fair amount of traffic on summer and fall weekends days.

Sauvie Island is about 7-8 miles north of Portland. Drive north on St. Helen's Road, through Linton and look for the Sauvie Island signs. Cross the bridge and turn immediately to your left into the parking lot.

To hit the 12.5 miles on the nose, start at the north end of the parking lot by the bridge where the roads intersect. Run the loop counterclockwise going south under the bridge. You'll encounter two stop signs, the first one near the half-way point. Bear left at each sign, and the road will bring you back to the bridge. Stop where the road goes under the bridge to complete 12.5 miles.

Sauvie Island is an agricultural island and seems destined to stay that way. Summer and fall are particularly lovely times as the air is heavy with the pungent smells of farm life. Reeder Beach, a great place for a post-run swim and picnic, can be reached by turning right at the stop sign half-way around the island.

Near the 11 mile point, you'll pass the beautifully restored Bybee/Howell house on your left. It was built in 1854 and is a classic example of revival architecture.

16

Hewitt/Humphrey/ Fairmont Loop

Distance

½ figure-eight 3.5 mi. (5.6 km.)
complete figure-eight 7.0 mi.
(11.2 km.)

Difficulty

3 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Across from Shell Station
on S.W. Patton and Dosch Rds.

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 9

Bad weather running - 10

Auto traffic - 4

Running Surface

Paved roads

This roughly equidistant figure eight loop has long been one of the most popular west side running routes. It attracts local denizens as well as seekers from all over the city. It's a traditional early morning marathon training course and is an increasingly popular stomping ground for runners ascending from the YMCA and Portland State far below.

One popular starting point (in the exact center of the figure of the loop) can be reached by driving north on Dosch Road until it intersects with Patton by the Shell station. From West Burnside, go up Vista and follow Patton to the intersection from the other direction (St. Thomas Moore church on your right). An alternative is to drive west on Canyon and take the Sylvan Exit at the top of the hill and go left over the freeway to the Skyline Building on the right. Park there and use this as your starting point.

This loop offers a 360° panorama of Portland, the hills, and the suburban areas west of Portland. On clear days the views are magnificent. For a pleasant diversion, take one of the many streets going uphill from Fairmont into Council Crest Park. The view from the summit is the most outstanding in the city, and arrows in the cement enclosure will help you identify the peaks in the distance.

The running on the loop is great, but try to stick to off-hours as the roads are narrow. There's a drinking fountain and restrooms at the Shell Station, but don't say we told you.

Suggested by: Gary Church

12

Lewis and Clark College in southwest Portland has one of the most beautiful campuses in the state, offering spectacular scenic vistas that few campuses anywhere could match. A fine new jogging trail circumventing the campus opens up this lovely area to the general populace.

Drive south on I-5 and take the Terwilliger Blvd. exit, following the overpass and staying on Terwilliger south to its intersection with S.W. Palatine Road. Go left on Palatine and park in the lot by the athletic fields.

Jog south through the parking lot and go left at the road leading to the west entrance of the Sports Center. Ascend the stairs to the right of the door. The trail starts at the top of the stairs next to the building.

Run west on the road and watch for the path-way on your left. Cross through the bushes and you'll see the clearly delineated wood chip trail leading up the hill to the right between the chapel and the security gatehouse. Once you're on it, follow it all the way around the perimeter of the campus. There are adequate signs along the way.

When the trail stops at a road on the east side of the campus, look across the road and you'll see a sign pointing you to the right of the Foreign Languages building. On the other side is a small parking lot. Look for a TRAIL sign at the east end, and you're off into the woods.

Stay left on the main trail in the woods and, if the mood strikes you, take advantage of the many exercise stations along the way. Cross the bridge, go sharp left at the other side down under the bridge, and continue down the ravine. Breaking out at the top of the hill, run sharp right at the rose garden and go right again at the PALATINE ROAD sign.

Stay on the trail as it traverses around the hill and comes out of the woods by the Music Building parking lot on the north side of the campus. Now follow it running west along the driveway road to the finish at Palatine Road.

There are restrooms and water in Pamplin Center.

Lewis & Clark Campus Loop
Distance
1.8 mi. (2.9 km.)
Difficulty
2 (Most difficult = 10)
Beginning Point
Top of stairs at west entrance of Pamplin Sports Center
Conditions
(Best Conditions = 10)
Aesthetics - 9
Bad weather running - 10
Auto traffic - 10
Running Surface
Wood chip trail

18

Lewis and Clark/ Dunthorpe Loops

Distance

Long loop - 5.5 mi.
(8.8 km.)

Short loop - 3.5 mi.
(5.6 km.)

Difficulty

(Most difficult = 10)

Long loop - 7

Short loop - 5

Beginning point

Main entrance (Albany Gate) to campus on Palatine Rd.

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - Long - 10

Short - 6

Bad weather running - 10

Auto traffic - Long - 5

Short - 7

Running Surface

Paved roads, gravel paths

Here are two gems in the Palatine Hill/Dunthorpe area. The area offers endless possibilities of lovely jaunts along quiet, shaded streets and lanes, secluded estates, and beautiful gardens. To get there, follow the directions given in the previous Lewis and Clark campus loop. Both runs start and end at the main campus entrance, immediately south of the parking lot.

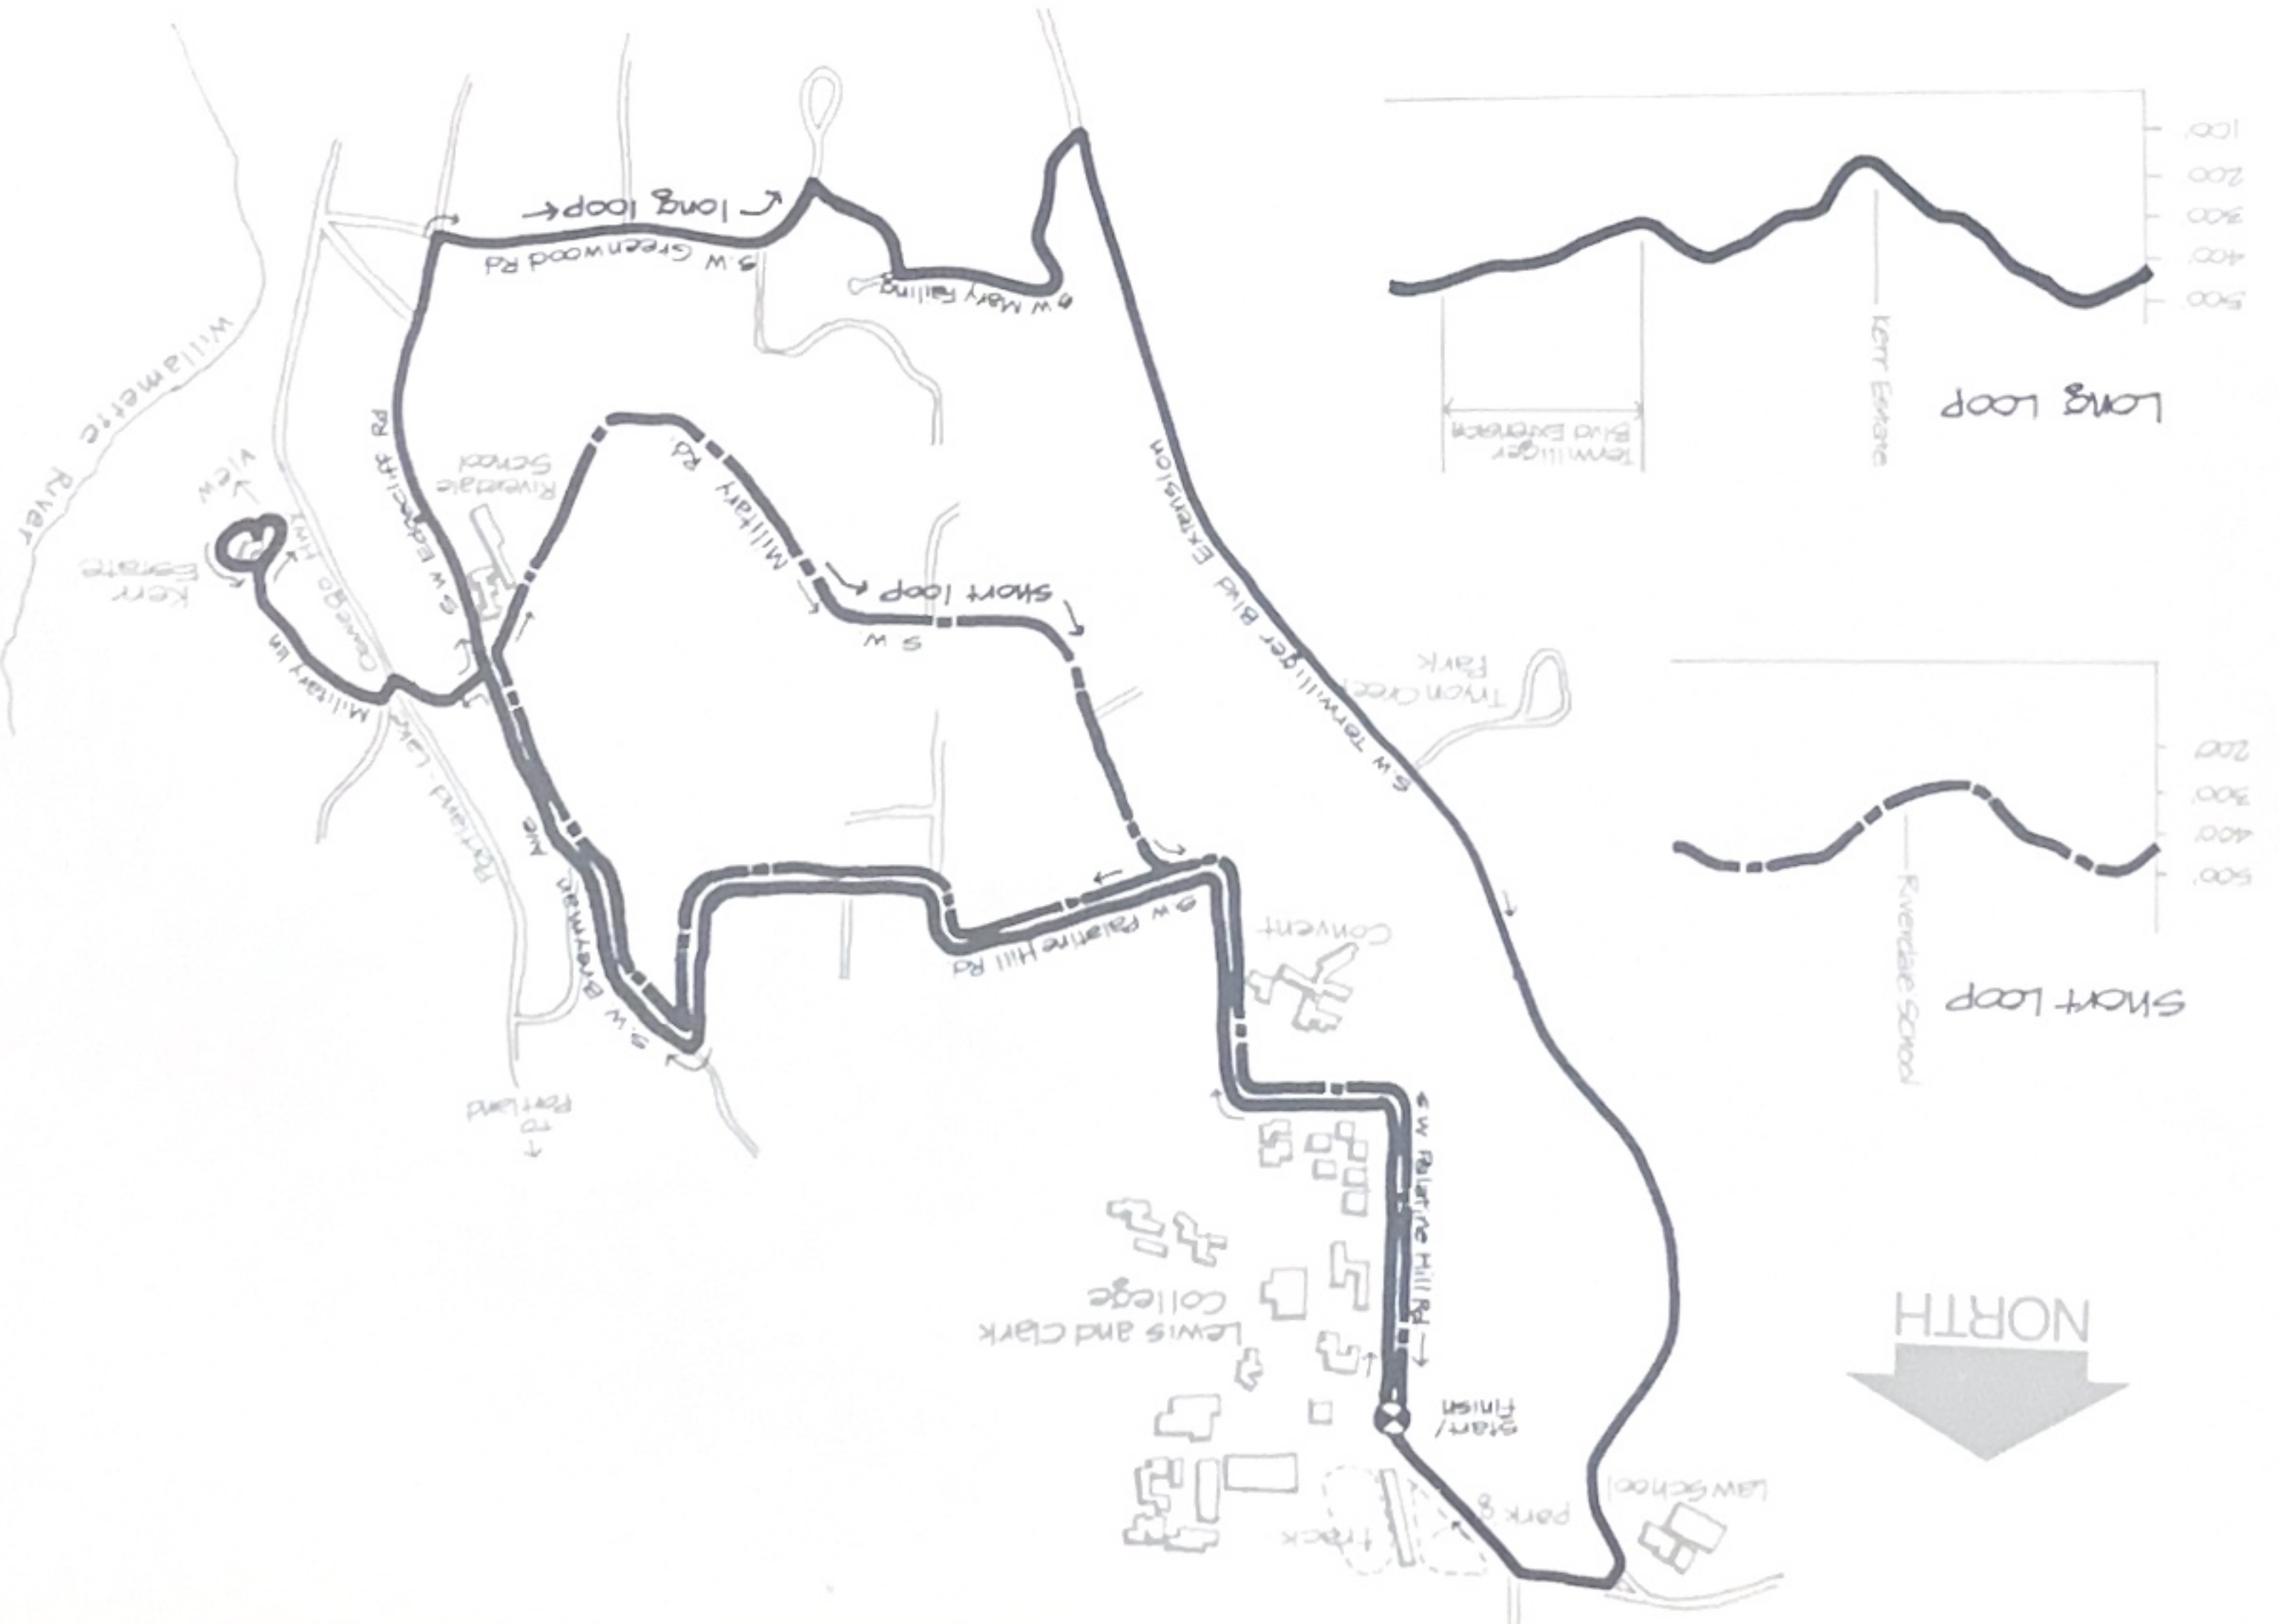

Long Loop - run south on Palatine up the hill then east and south again going away from the campus. Begin your long descent of the hill, following Palatine down to its intersection with Breyman Avenue. Go straight on Breyman to Military Road at about 1½ miles and turn left, dropping down the hill and crossing the Portland/Lake Oswego Highway. Turn right at Military Lane (a few yards down from the highway) and proceed south on this beautiful road to the Kerr Estate (now the Episcopal Diocese). Cross the parking lot and take the gravel trail immediately to the right of the house as it angles up the hill past rhododendrons and madrognas. Stay on the main trail to the rock-walled viewpoint above the Willamette River then head down the lower trail, going right at the next fork to the lower view point. Follow the trail down to the wood foot-bridge. Cross and stay right, running around the estate grounds and coming back to the entrance. Retrace your route back up to the intersection of Military Road and Breyman, going left on Breyman past the school. Greenwood, then Mary Failing, will take you to the top of the hill and a well-deserved plunge down the other side.

Where Failing dead ends, take the dirt road down right to Terwilliger, turn right and head back. Terwilliger has good shoulders on the right side.

Short Loop - Start at the same place and follow Palatine Road down the hill to Breyman Ave. Go straight on Breyman to Military Road and turn right and climb the hill by Riverdale School. Stay on Military Road all the way up to its intersection with Palatine, turn left and follow the road back to the starting place.

To include the tour through the Kerr estate gardens go left down Military Rd and follow the directions on the Long Loop. It will add just a shade over a mile onto this run.

Suggested by: Coleen King

19

Washington Park Loop

Distance

3.6 mi. (5.8 km.)

Difficulty

4 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Parking lots by tennis courts and Japanese Garden on Kingston Drive in Washington Park

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 7

Bad weather running - 3

Auto traffic - 7

Running Surface

Paved roads and dirt trails

This is an excellent loop for the beginning jogger, one offering scenic beauty as well as a tour of Washington Park's more well-known attractions.

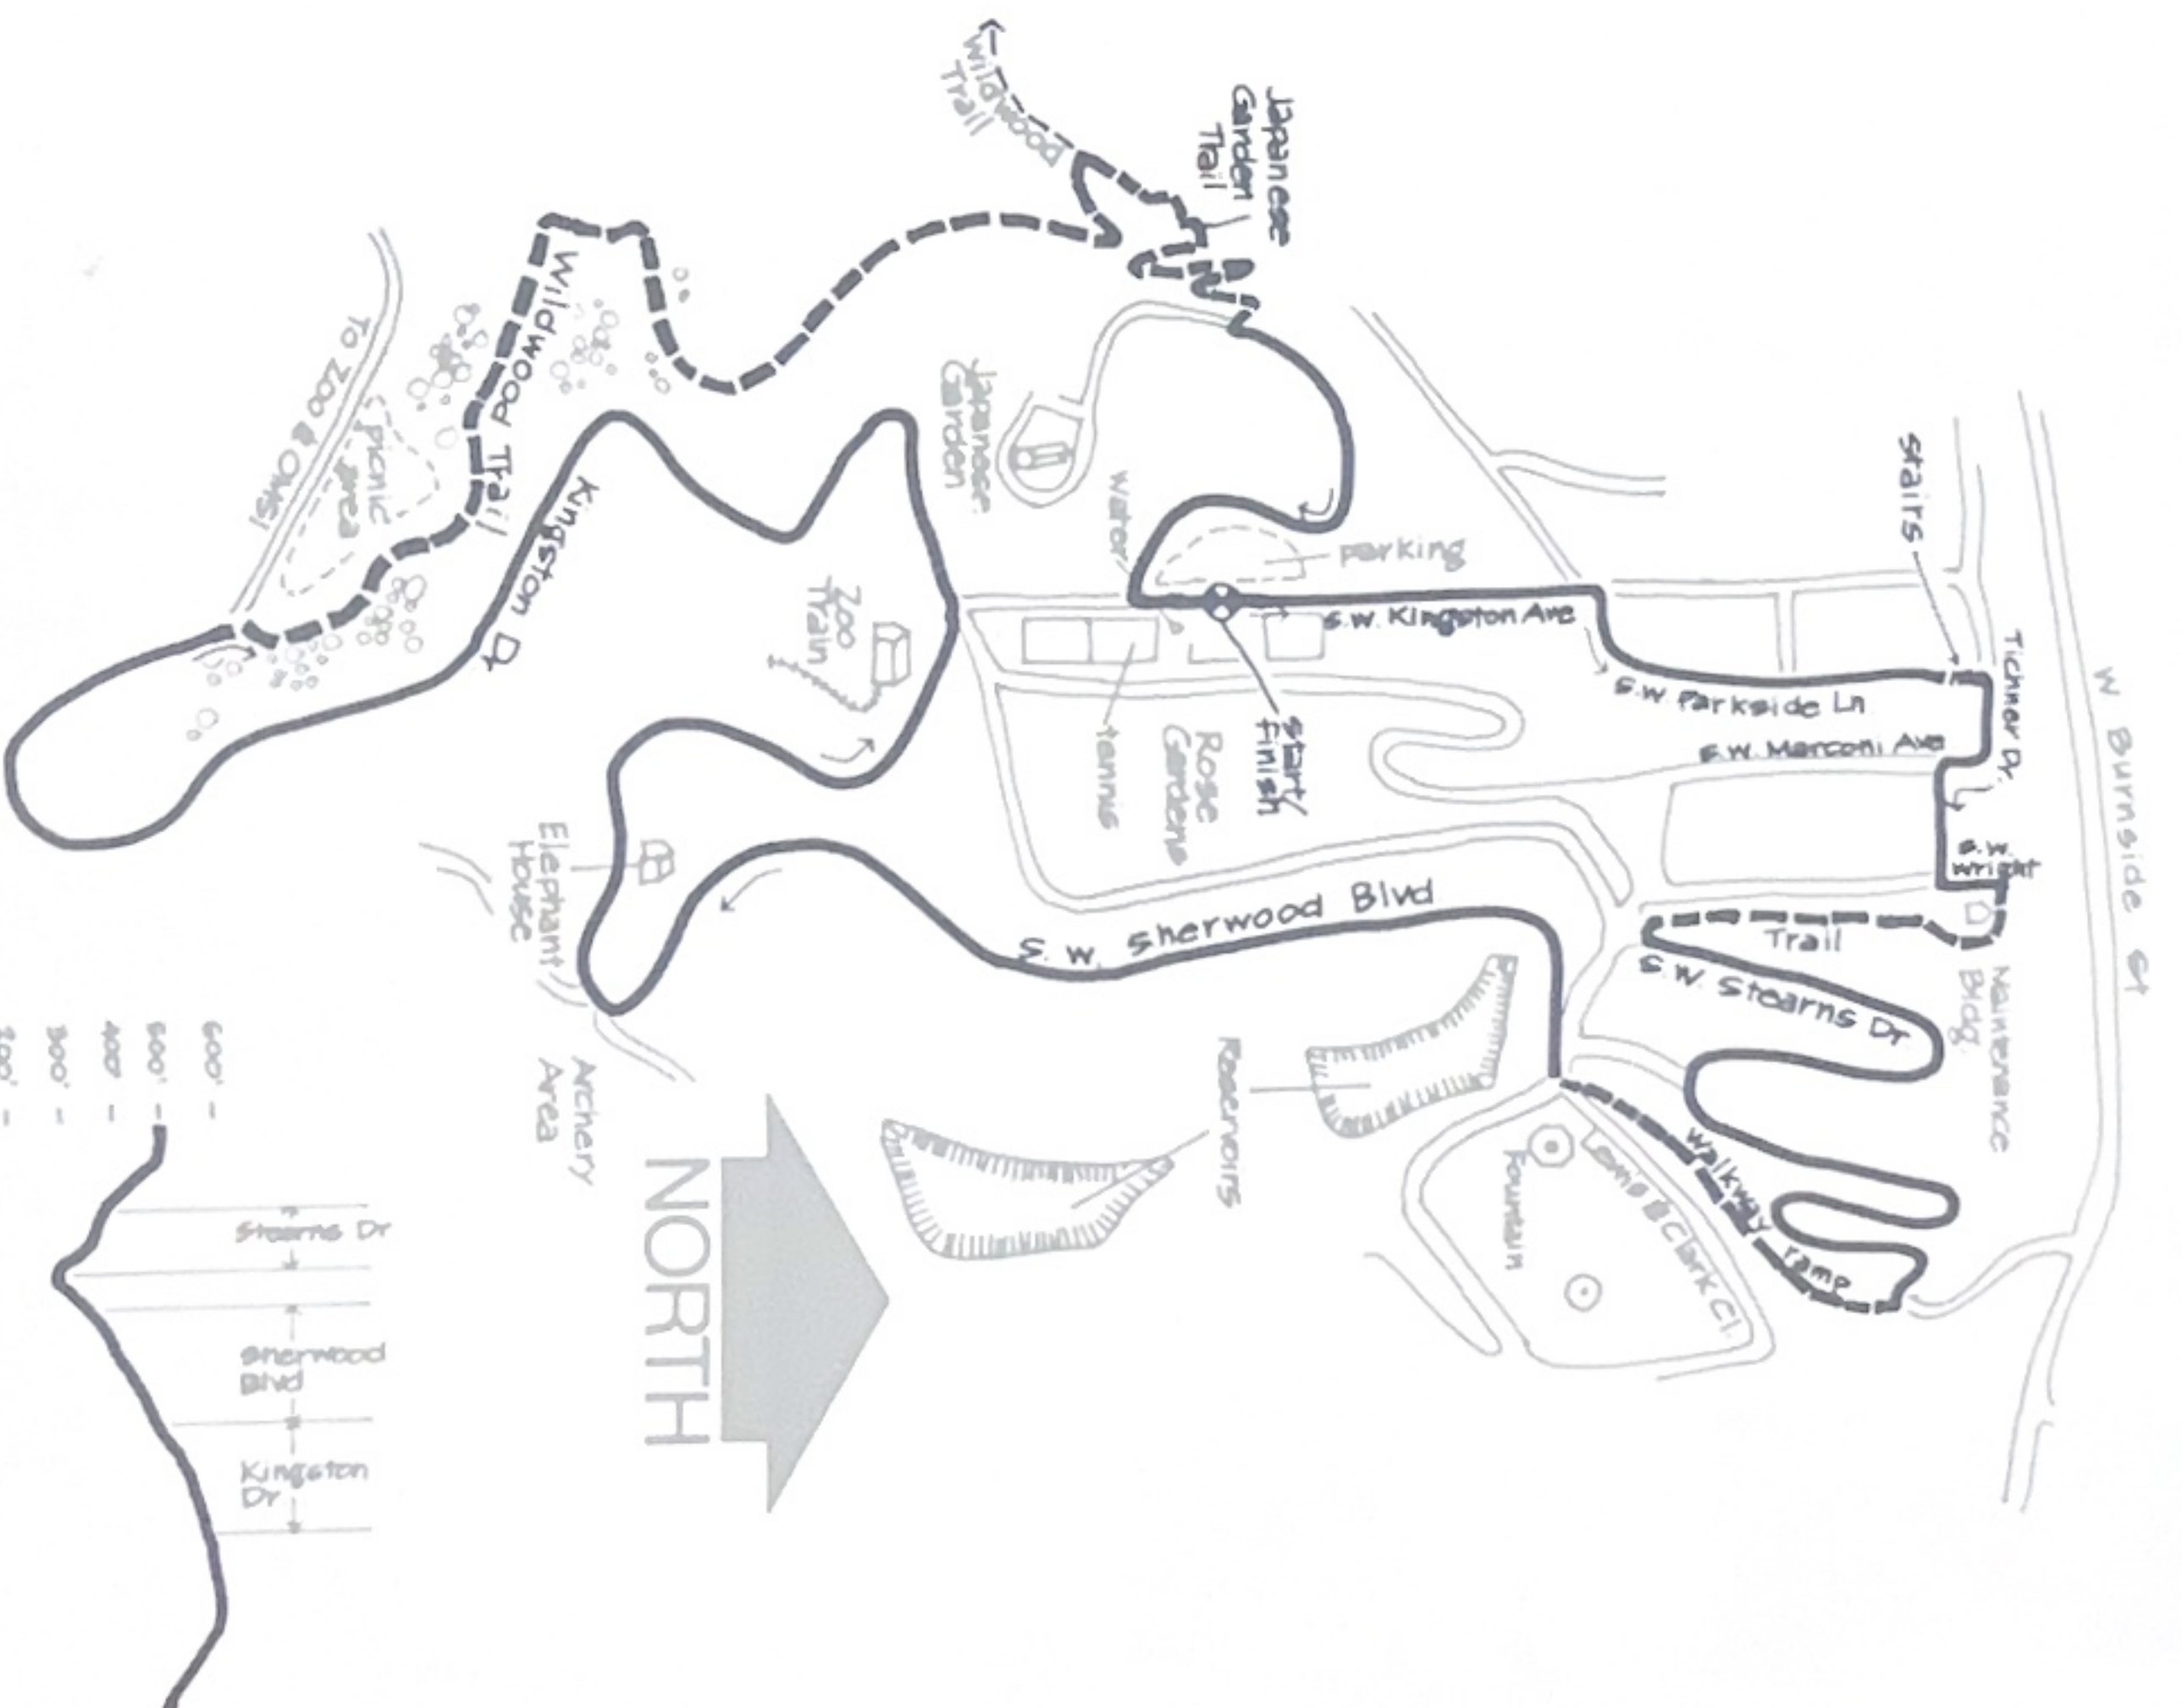

To get there, drive west on upper Burnside about a half mile past the Uptown Shopping area to the yellow blinking light. Take a sharp left and climb the hill to S.W. Kingston Ave. Drive south on Kingston Ave. several blocks to the parking area which will be on your right.

Start by the drinking fountain in the middle of the tennis court area and run north on Kingston Drive. Turn right at Parkside Lane passing a particularly scenic vista of the city. At the end of the lane, descend the stairs and turn right on Tichner, then left on Tichner Drive for one block. Go left at Wright, jog a short half block, and pick up the trail going off to the right at the end of the street. Stay on the trail as it winds around the hill coming out at Stearns Drive. Bear left, following the switchbacks down the hill until you see the cement walking ramp going up to the right.

Follow the ramp up to Lewis and Clark Circle (the fountain area) and run across the wide intersection, angling right, and get on Sherwood Road running around the reservoir. Follow Sherwood past the archery field and the old elephant house to its intersection with Kingston Ave. at the south end of the tennis courts.

Now the work begins. Run left up the steep grade, following Kingston Drive as it climbs through Douglas fir to the Zoo. About 3/4 mile up the road, bear right at the parking lot and pick up Wildwood Trail a few yards into the trees. Go straight at the trail fork, and run up the canyon and along the hill overlooking the Japanese Garden.

Turn right off Wildwood at the next fork and follow the Japanese Garden Trail as it descends to the paved road. Turn left on the road and run 1/4 mile down to your car.

20

Downtown River Run

Distance

2.9 mi. (4.7 km.)

Difficulty

3 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Anywhere along the westside
Downtown waterfront

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 9

Bad weather running - 9

Auto traffic - 9

Running Surface

Paved walkways, gravel

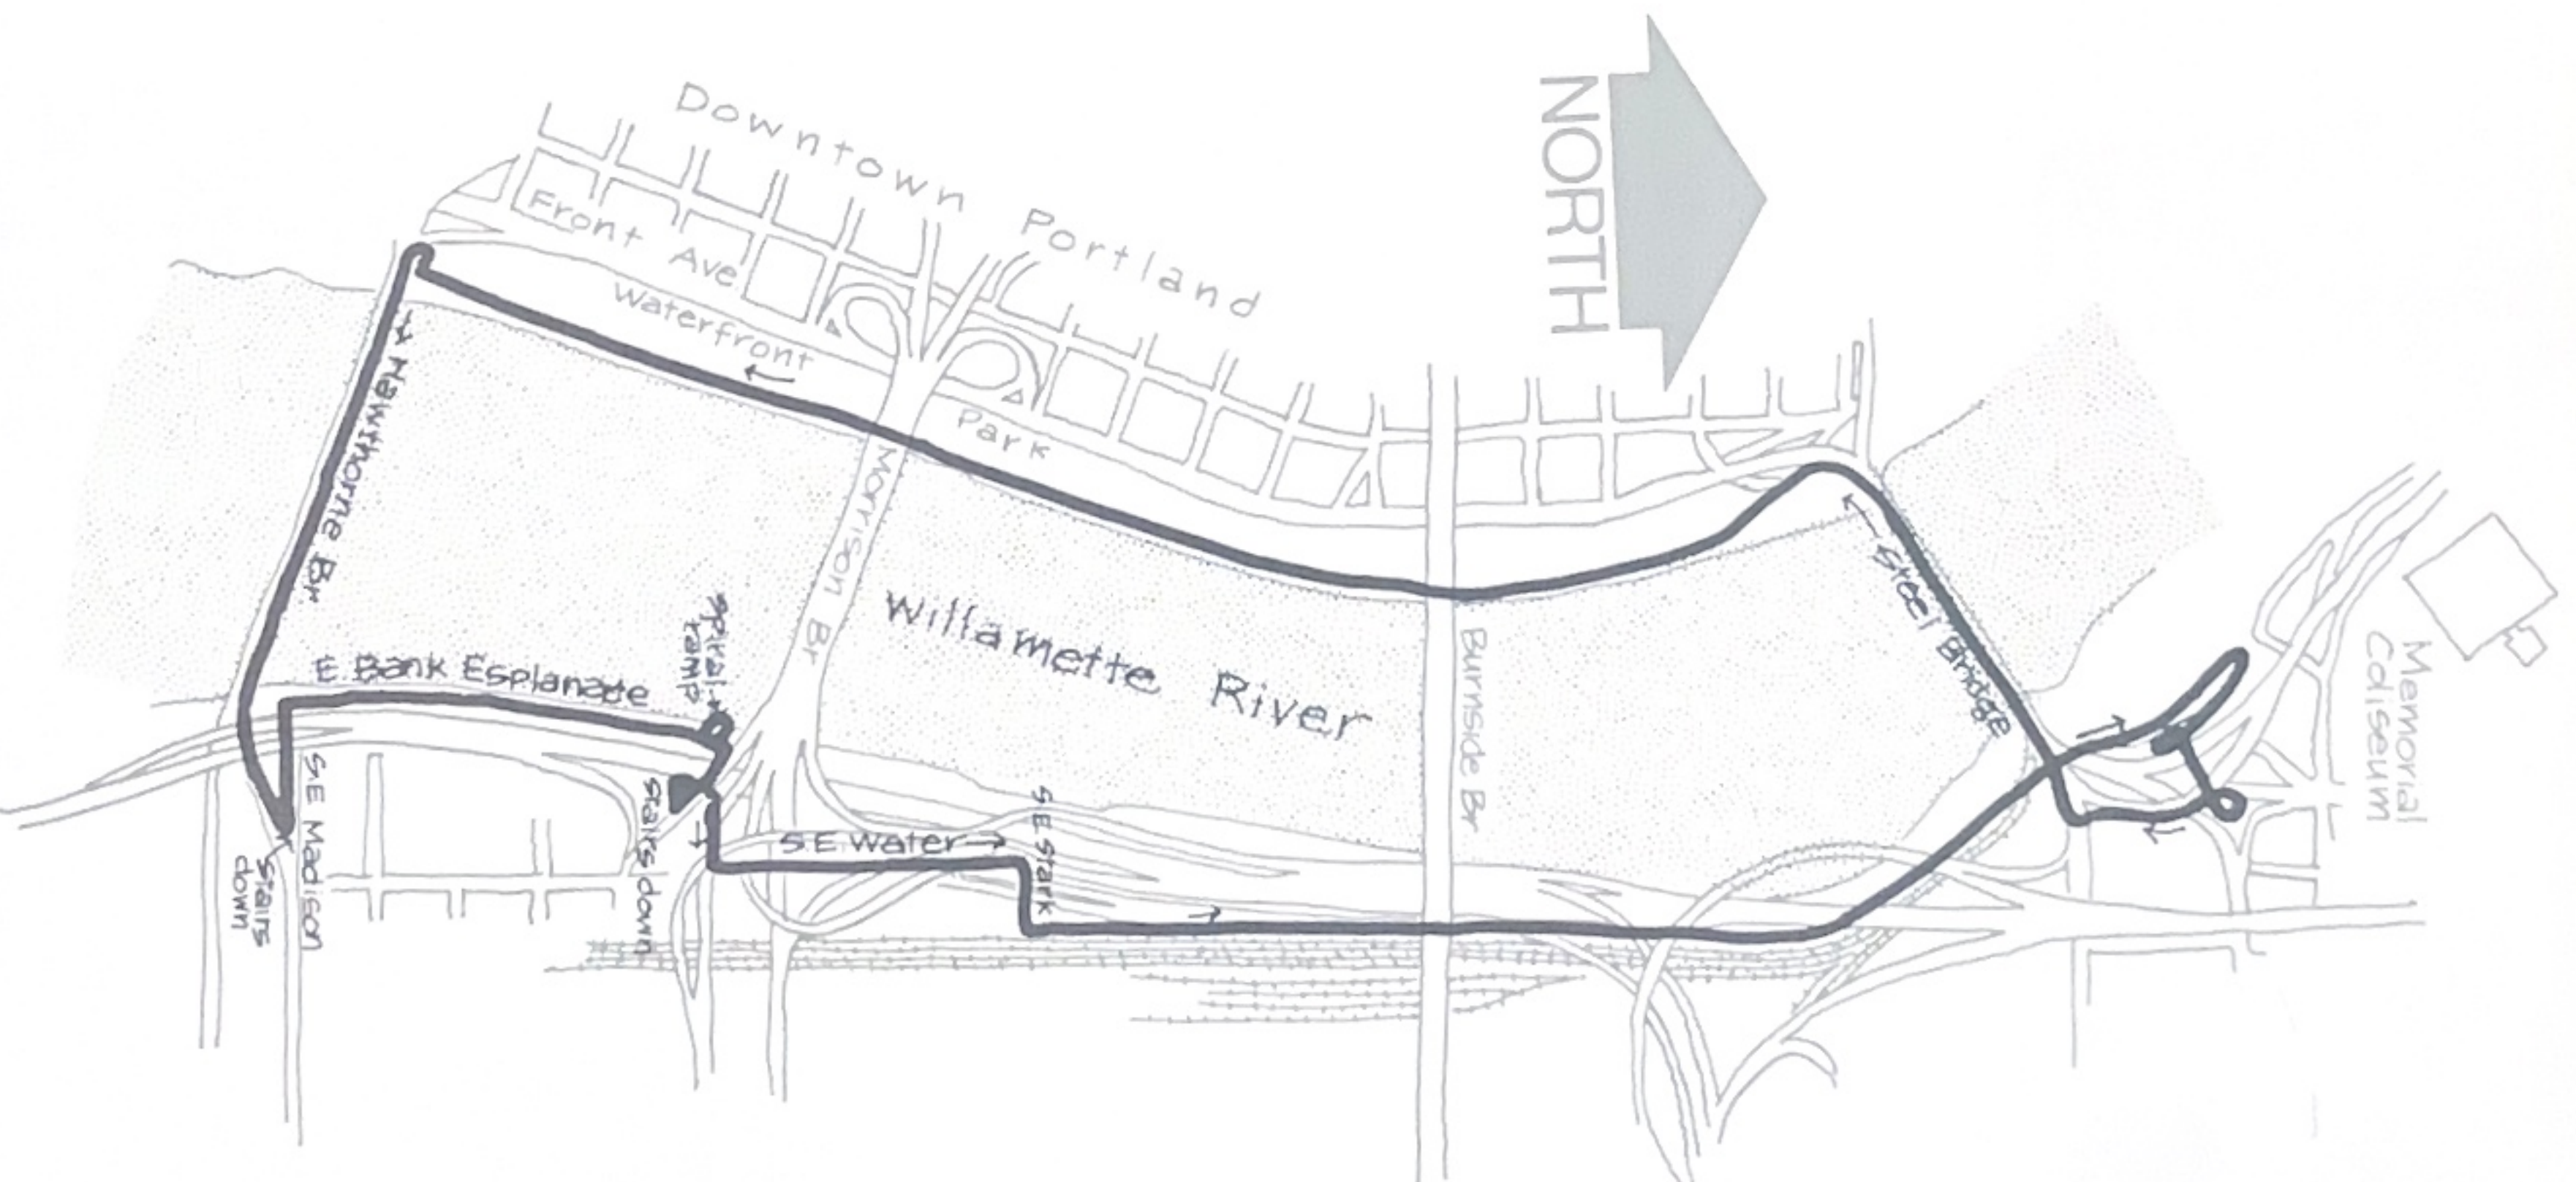

We searched long and hard for a run that looped around both sides of the downtown waterfront without crossing any major lanes of traffic. We found it.

Begin and end at any point along the downtown waterfront park. Run south along the seawall and take the stairway leading to the north walkway of the Hawthorne Bridge. Cross on the bridge and take the first stairway down to ground level at the intersection of S.E. Water and Madison streets. Run immediately back toward the river through the parked trucks. Turn right at the fire station and weave your way through the obstructions for about half a block until you see the paved asphalt marking the beginning of the East Bank Esplanade.

The next 1/4 mile as you run north offers a rarely seen view of downtown Portland, unfortunately ending at the Morrison Bridge. Take the spiral ramp at the bridge turn right at the top. Run until you come to the ramp winding down right (just beyond the stairs) and take that down to the ground level. Turn right there and follow the walkway until you come to S.E. Water St. Take a left. Run north on Water until you come to the wall at Stark St. and bear right to the railroad tracks. Turn left at the tracks and run along the left side of the tracks about 3/4 mile on dirt and gravel with the river on your left. You'll pass under the Burnside Bridge, freeway ramps, and then the Steel Bridge. Look to your right and you'll see the road ascending the hill in back of the powerplant. Run up that road and turn sharp right at the top and cross the parking lot to the walkway leading to the north sidewalk of the Steel Bridge.

Running along the walkway, take the first stairway down, before you reach the bridge. Take the pedestrian path through two brief tunnels, emerging on N.E. Holladay. Go left up the stairs and left again at the roadway. In a few hundred feet you'll reach yet another underpass. This one will take you to the south walkway of the Steel Bridge and any easy run back to your starting point.

Suggested by: John Russell

21

This lovely, forested trail becomes very muddy and slippery during heavy rains, particularly the stretches above the Japanese Garden and the section coming up the creek bed below Hemlock Trail. However, don't let that discourage you, as this loop is certainly one of the most beautiful walking/jogging trails in the country, and many people run it year 'round. Your shoes may get muddy, but you'll enjoy running through the largest arboretum in the world.

Forestry Center/
Hoyt Arboretum Loop

Distance

3.8 mi. (6 km.)

Difficulty

5 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

North side of the Western Forestry Center building by the Zoo.

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 10

Bad weather running - 4

Auto traffic - 10

Running Surface

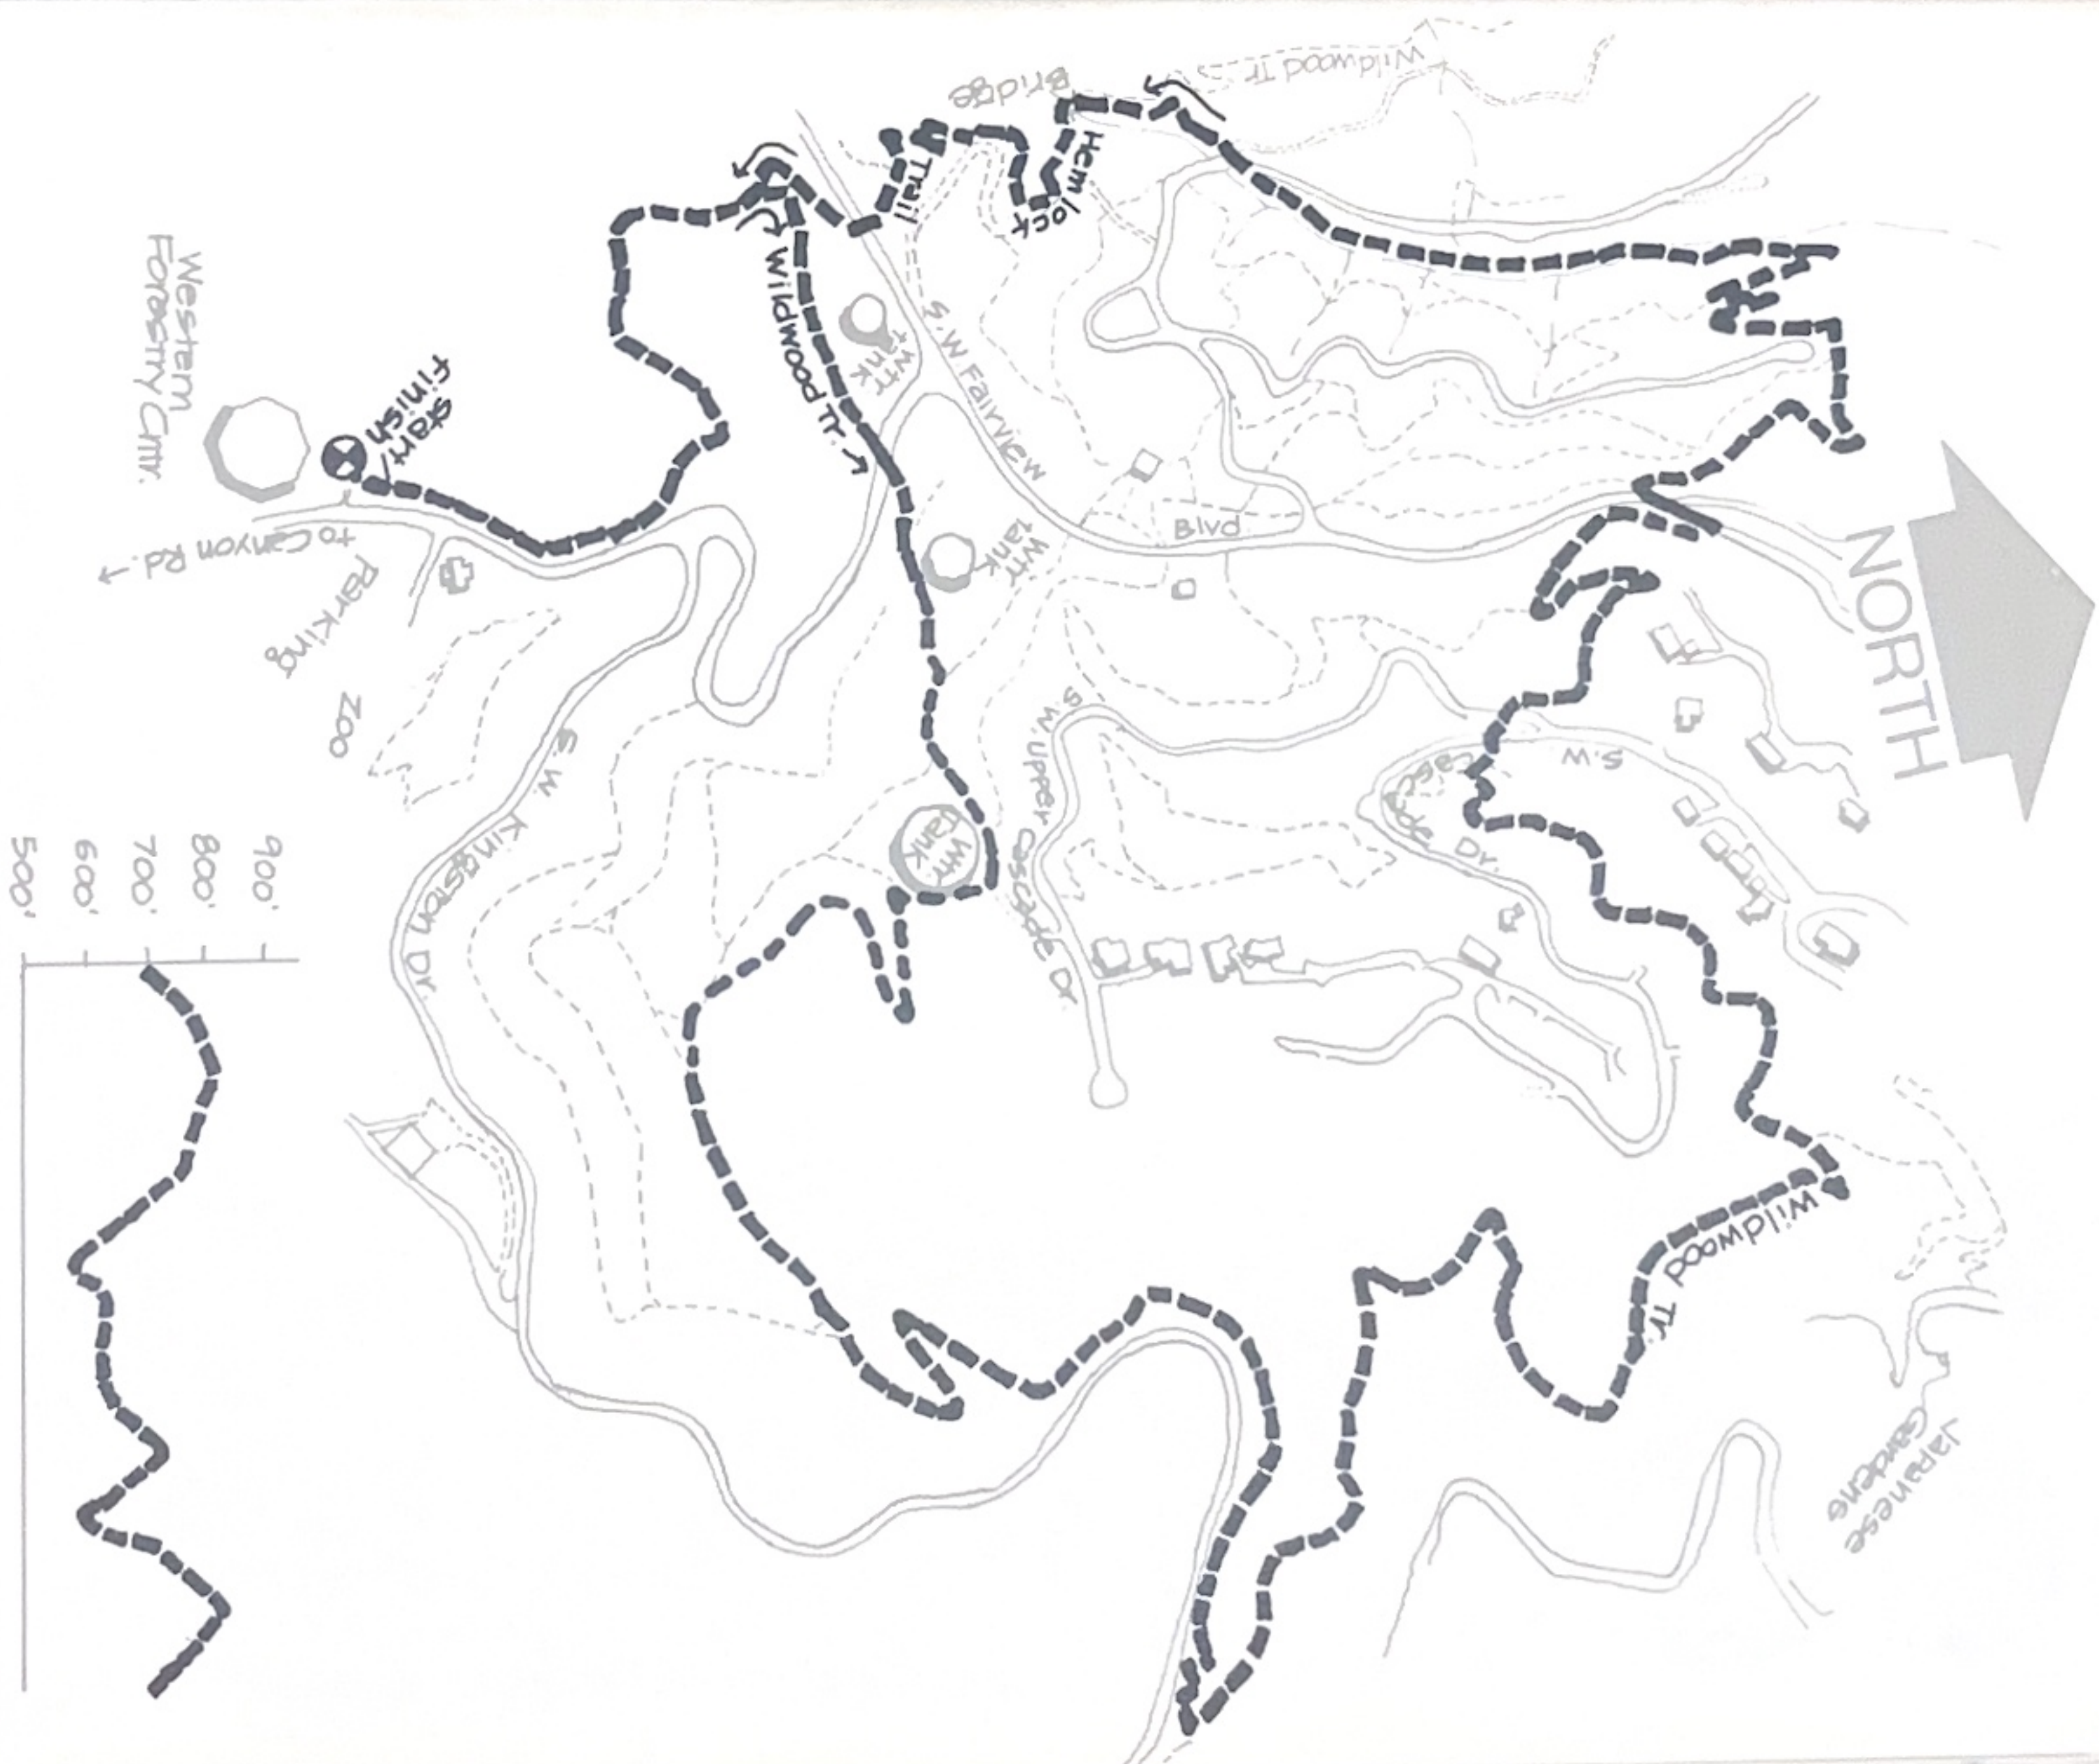

Dirt trail

Take Canyon Road west and exit at the Forestry Center sign. Go past the zoo entrance to the far parking lot in front of the Western Forestry Center.

The Wildwood trailhead is to the right of the building. Run to the crest of the hill 1/4 mile from the start, stop and do some stretches while enjoying the splendid view in all directions. A marker between the water towers will help you identify the mountains on a clear day.

Follow Wildwood Trail as it goes around the east water tower and angles down the hill to the big open playing field on Kingston Drive. Go straight across the field and pick up the trail again in the woods. Take the left fork some 300 yards further, traversing the slopes above the Japanese Garden, keeping left at the trail intersection. Follow Wildwood as it angles up the hill, across Fairview Blvd., and down the other side into Hoyt Arboretum.

Around the 3 mile point (in the larch trees), leave Wildwood Trail by the wooden footbridge and take Hemlock Trail as it switchbacks up the hill and returns to Fairview. Cross the road and pick up the trail again as it descends through junipers, rejoining Wildwood for the run back to the Forestry Center. Restrooms and water are available next to the Forestry Center.

22

Macleay Park Loop

Distance
3.7 mi. (5.9km.)
Difficulty
5 (Most difficult = 10)
Beginning Point
Macleay Park parking lot
Conditions
(Best Conditions = 10)
Aesthetics - 9
Bad weather running - 4
Auto traffic - 8
Running Surface
Dirt trail and paved road

If you're looking for a 30-40 minute run that is secluded, forested and easily accessible by car, try this one.

Follow N.W. Lovejoy which becomes Cornell at 26th. Drive up Cornell through two tunnels to the Macleay Park parking lot on your right. There's a drinking fountain by the turn-in.

Get on the Wildwood Trail at the east end of the parking lot, and descend steeply a hundred feet to Balch Creek. Cross the creek, stay on Wildwood and take the left fork at the stone hut. You'll be going uphill gradually for quite a distance, so take it easy and conserve your energy.

At around 2 1/2 miles turn left onto Birch Trail. Climb through Douglas fir and alder 1/4 mile to the parking lot on N.W. 53rd Drive. Go left on 53rd Drive as it descends steeply to Cornell. Turn left again on Cornell. Cross to the right side of Cornell where there is a broader shoulder. Now's a good time to stretch out your legs as you run 1/2 mile on a gentle downhill grade to the Pittock Bird Sanctuary and Oregon Audubon Society building. The last 1/4 mile is slightly uphill back to Macleay Park and your car.

There's a drinking fountain by the park sign, where Wildwood crosses Cornell.

Forest Park /
Macleay Park /
Hoyt Arboretum

23

Balch Creek/N.W. Thurman Loop

Distance

3.0 mi. (4.8 km.)

Difficulty

4 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Thurman Park underneath
Thurman St. Bridge

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 7

Bad weather running - 5

Auto traffic - 8

Running Surface

Dirt trail and paved road

This is a very beautiful run through heavy forest, lush with ferns and mosses. The first mile follows Balch Creek up a canyon past cascading waterfalls and over several bridges.

The run begins at Thurman Park. To get to the park, drive west on N.W. Thurman to 28th, taking a right turn and a short jog left to N.W. Upshur. Proceed two long blocks west and drive straight into the park. Parking, restrooms and water are all available next to the park headquarters building.

Take the path running along the creek from the west end of the parking lot. Make a sharp right turn at the stone hut and get on Wildwood Trail, winding uphill and across the maintenance road above the meadow as it climbs further into Forest Park.

About a mile from the creek, watch for the Aspen Trail sign pointing down to your right. Aspen Trail angles down steeply and emerges on N.W. Aspen Street in the Willamette Heights residential area. Run left on Aspen to where it merges with Thurman, running downhill to the bridge. Cross the bridge and take the stairs on the left side of the street back to your car in the lot below.

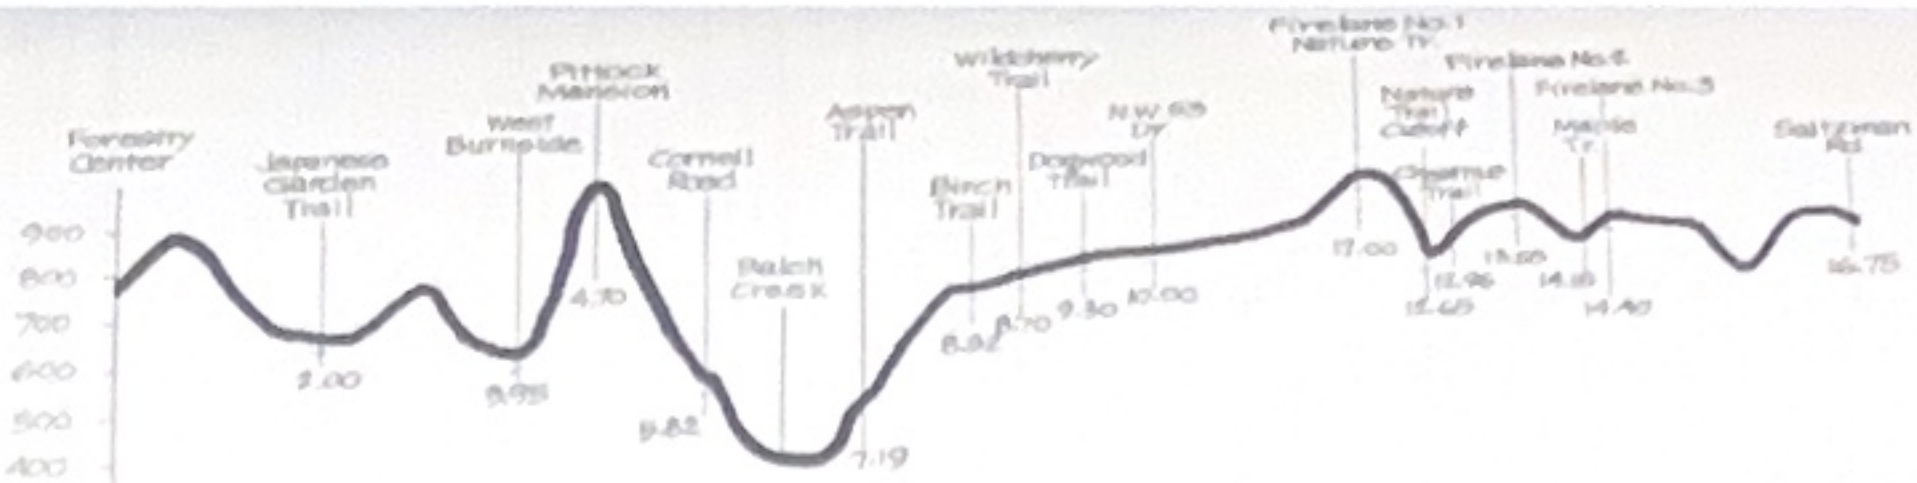

Fireline No. 1
Nature Tr.
Fireline No. 2

wildcherry

Pittcock

24

Leif Erikson/Wildwood Loop

Distance

9.0 mi. (14.5 km.)

Difficulty

7 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Trail Head on N.W. 53rd Drive

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 9

Bad weather running - 4

Auto traffic - 9

Running Surface

Dirt trails and gravelly, dirt road

Here's a loop that offers a connoisseur's selection of what running in the upper reaches of Forest Park is all about.

Drive up N.W. Lovejoy to where it becomes Cornell at 26th Avenue and follow Cornell over a mile to 53rd Drive. Turn right on 53rd Drive and follow it to the parking place with a trail gate and a sign saying - FOREST PARK-RIDGE TRAIL.

Two trails take off from here. Take Dogwood Trail (on the left) for a short climb through fir, alder and ferns to the top of the ridge. Enjoy the sweeping view in the clearing at Inspiration Point. Then, follow the trail as it descends the ridge and meets Wildwood Trail below. Turn on Wildwood, climbing slowly to where it meets 53rd Dr. and descending gradually to the Alder Trail intersection. Jog right on Alder, dropping 1/4 mile to dirt-surfaced Leif Erikson Drive. Go left on the road for approximately 2 miles of easy uphill running to the old dam site on your left. You'll pass many viewpoints of the city on your way. As you approach the parking area and picnic tables on your left, take Chestnut Trail ahead of you and climb a winding 3/8 mile to Wildwood again. Turn left and prepare to enjoy one of the most beautiful stretches of forested running trail available anywhere as you retrace your steps back to Dogwood Trail. Save some energy for the climb back up Dogwood Ridge to Inspiration Point, then enjoy the easy descent back to the parking area.

25

Duniway Park/Terwilliger Runs

Distance

Capitol Hwy.: 5.5 mi. (8.8 km.)
Barbur Blvd.: 6.9 mi. (11 km.)

Difficulty

3 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Duniway Park track on SW Barbur in Portland

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 8

Bad weather running - 10

Auto traffic - 8

Running Surface

Asphalt jogging/bike path;
sidewalk at southern end

This is without a doubt the most popular jogging route in the Portland area, due to the recent opening of the YMCA's Metro Fitness Center on Barbur beside the Duniway track. Runners can be seen jogging up the long, gradual ascent to the Hill Villa at literally any hour of the day.

On nice days there are runners of all ages and sexes along the whole route. This isn't stated to deter you from running Terwilliger; there's much to be said for the presence of other runners to serve as a positive stimulus to push one along the path with considerable less boredom and pain.

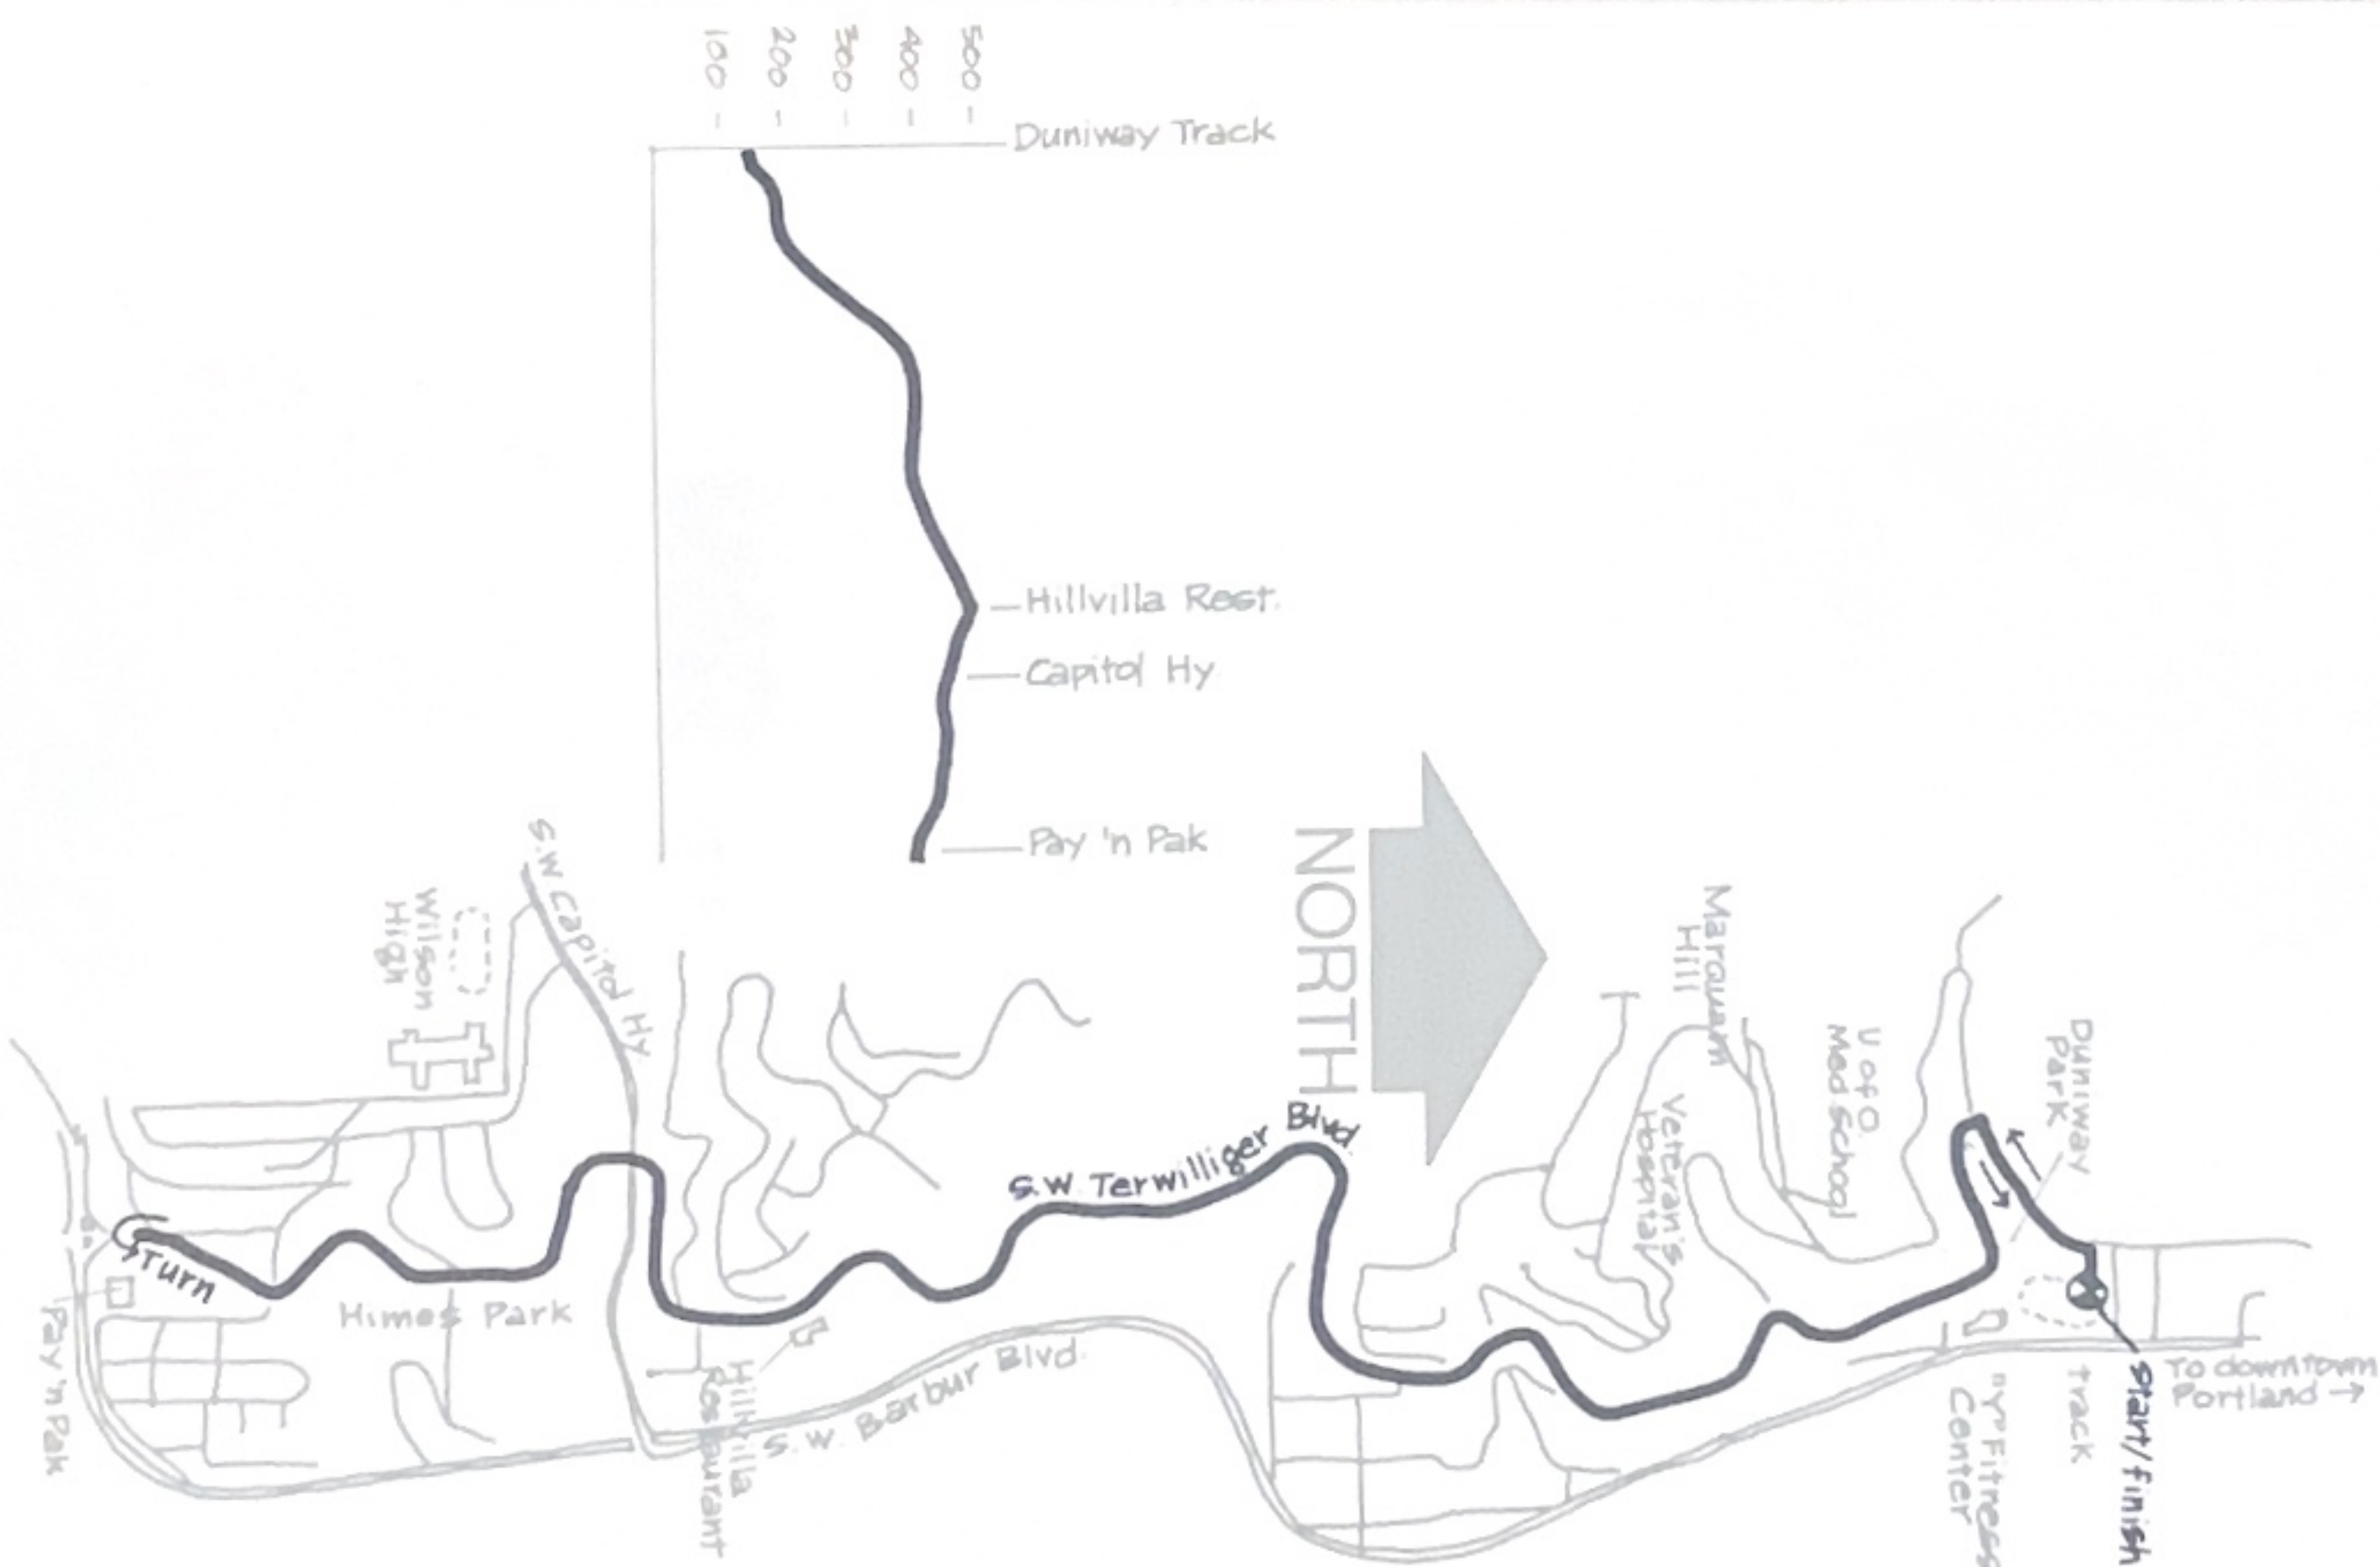

Terwilliger is the starting point of numerous runs up into the hills. We're going to give you the two basic routes staying only on Terwilliger. The stretch from just above the track to the Hill Villa Restaurant offers beautiful views of the City and the Willamette River-Oaks Park area.

Start from the south end of the Duniway

Track near the YMCA steps and head up the paved path on the left by the restrooms. Follow this up to Sam Jackson Park Road, turn left and follow the path to the intersection by the Shell Station. Go left up the hill on Terwilliger. You'll be going gradually uphill for two miles to the Hill Villa Restaurant. Continue past Hill Villa down the hill to the stop light at SW Capitol Highway. If you turn around here, and run back to Duniway Park, you will have run 5.5 miles.

For a little more distance, cross Capitol Highway and get on the asphalt path following Terwilliger through George Himes Park. Coming up a hill you'll leave the park, but stay on the sidewalk and run the remaining few blocks downhill to SW Barbur Blvd. Retrace your steps back to Duniway Park and you'll have covered 6.9 miles. If you like even numbers in your daily log book, do a complete lap on the track at the end and you've got a safe 7 miles.

Suggested by: Martin J. Conley

27

Portland Community College/ Mt. Sylvania Loops

Distance
Long Loop - 5.6 mi. (9 km.)
Short Loop - 4.6 mi. (7.6 km.)
Difficulty
(Most difficult = 10)
Long Loop - 8
Short Loop - 4
Beginning Point
Main entrance to campus at stoplight on S.W. 49th Ave.
Conditions
(Best Conditions = 10)
Aesthetics - Long - 7
Short - 6
Bad weather running - 10
Auto traffic - Long - 3
Short - 6
Running Surface
Paved roads

The area surrounding the Mt. Sylvania Campus of Portland Community College and the Mountain Park housing development contains many pleasant running routes. Here are a couple that Val Vitums of PCC's PE department says are local favorites. Try them and you'll see why.

Both runs begin at the entrance to the campus on S.W. 49th. Take the Capitol Highway exit off I-5 and follow the signs to the College.

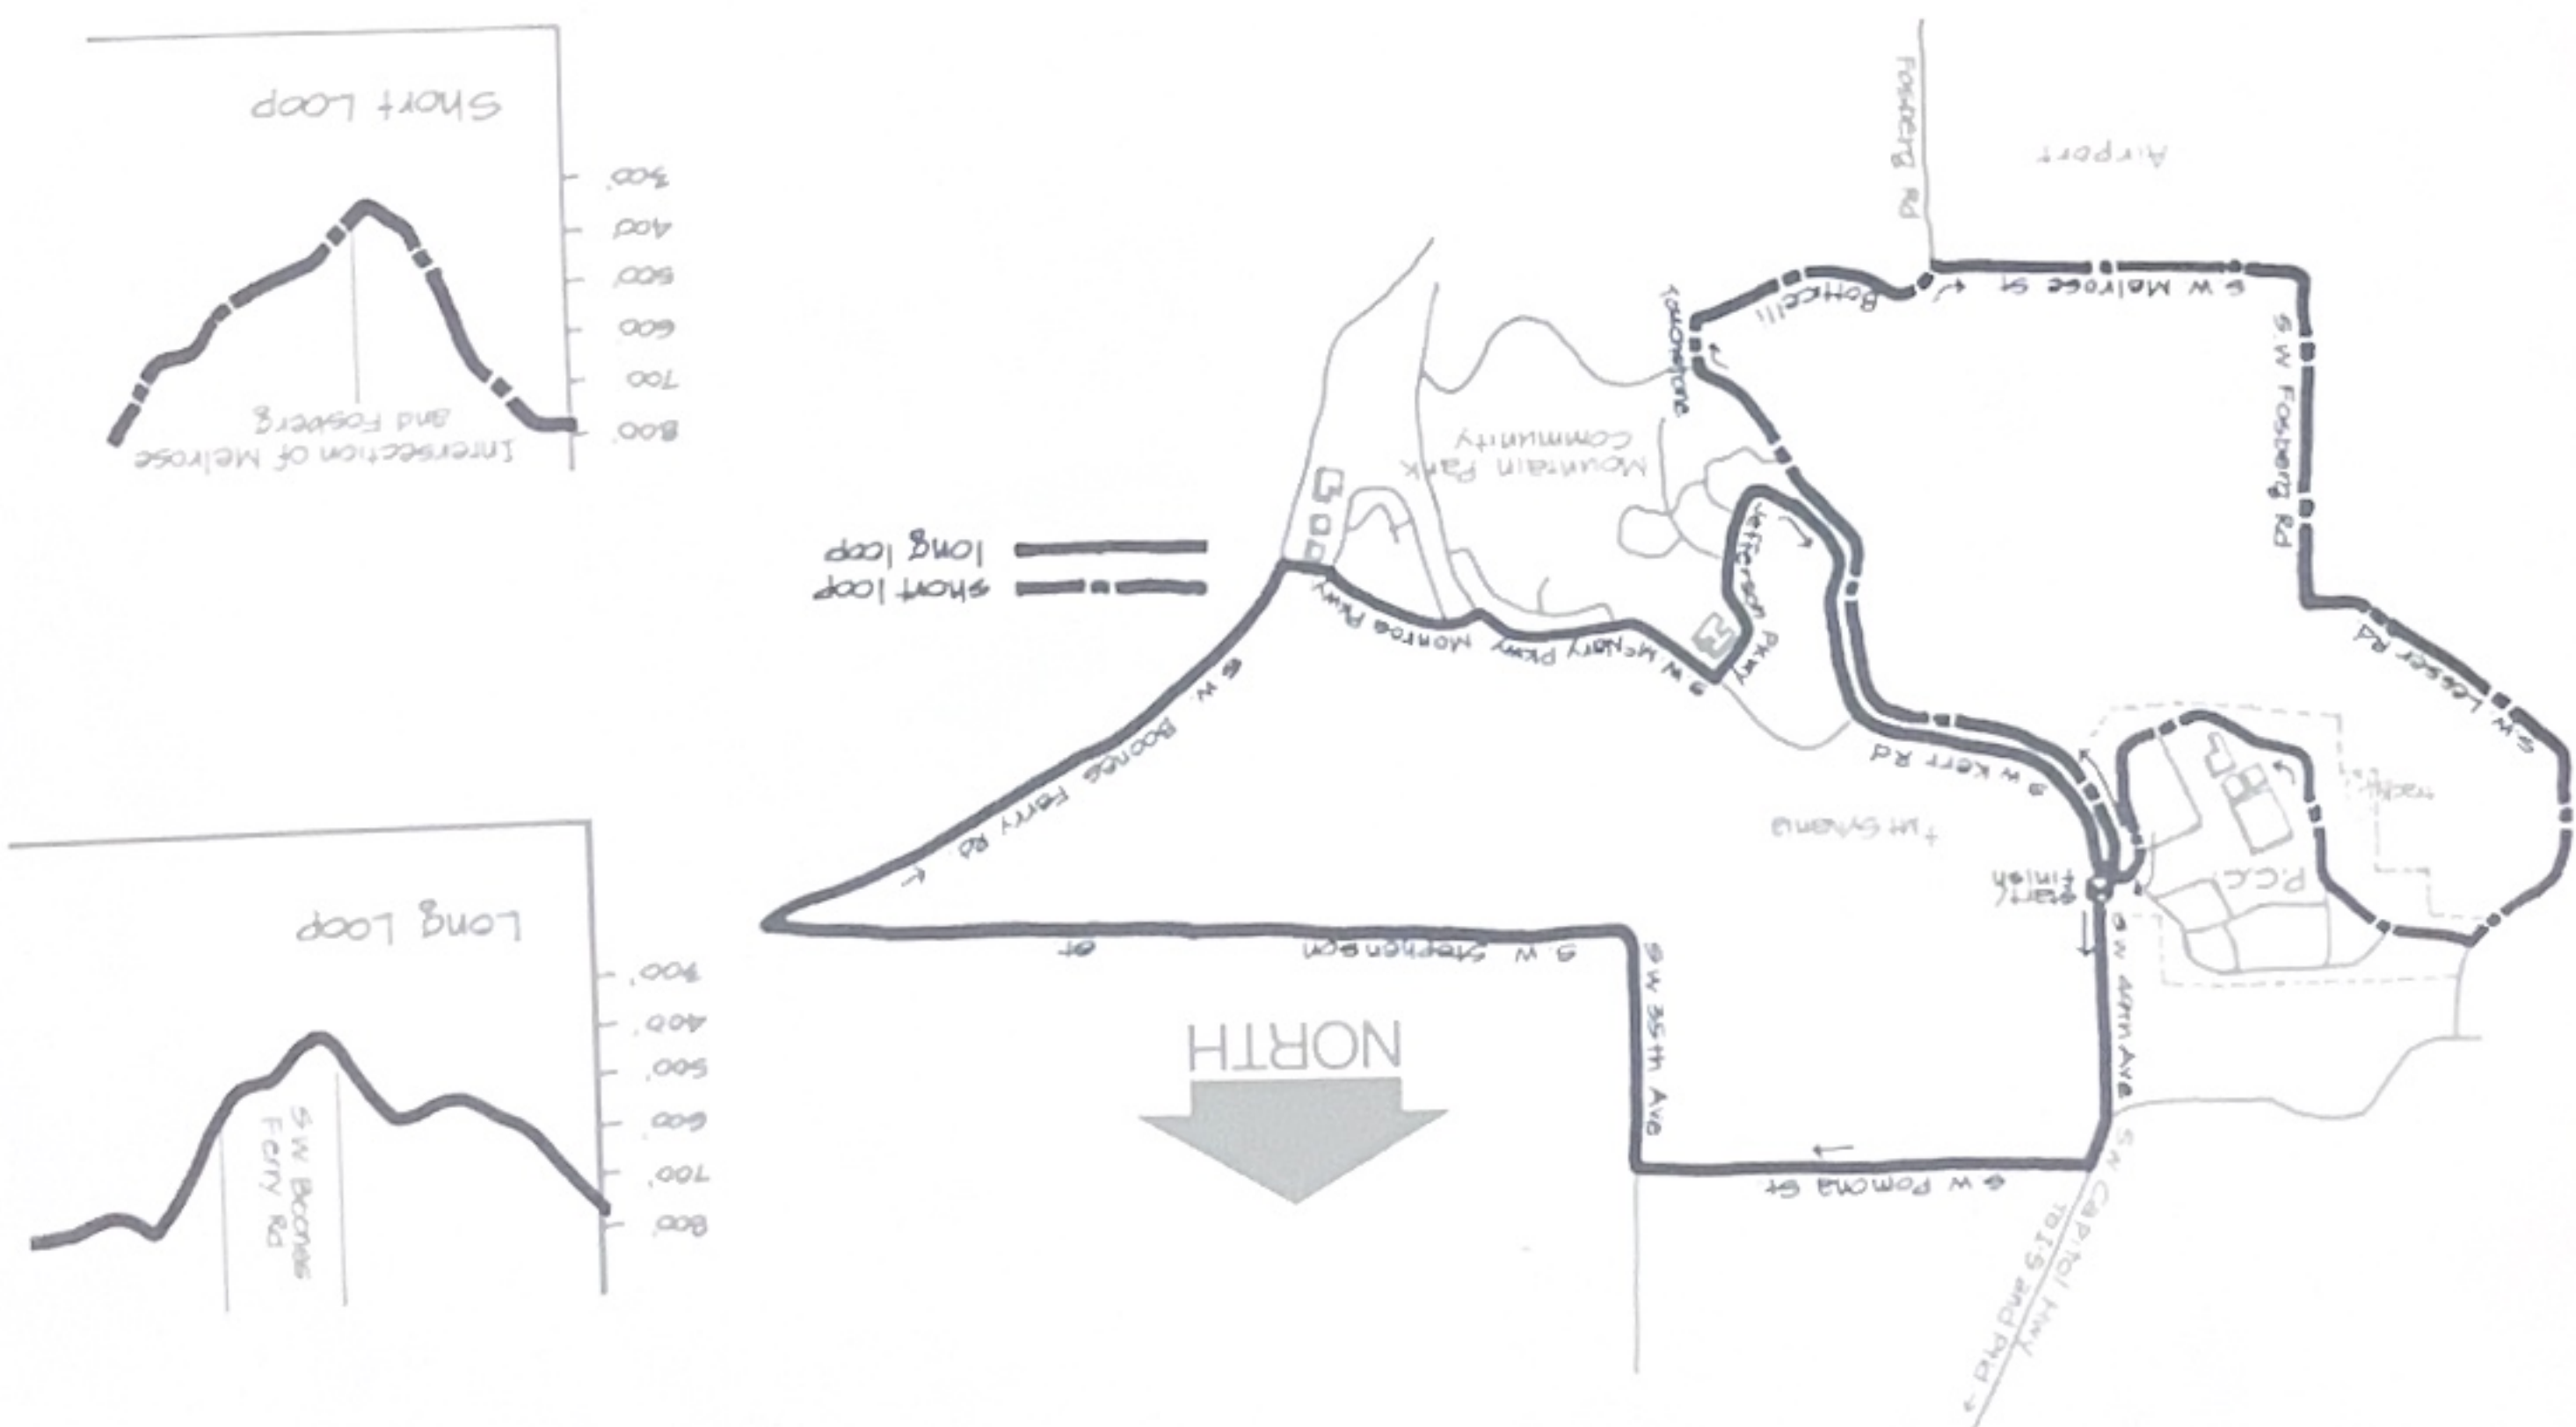

Long Loop - head north down 49th Avenue from the campus entrance to Pomona and turn right. Traffic is light as you work your way down long hills past wooded areas and scattered homes. At the top of the Stephenson Hill by the school you'll enjoy beautiful views of the surrounding countryside. Mt. St. Helens and Mt. Hood. The stretch south of Boones Ferry Road runs between broken agricultural land on the right and Tryon Creek State Park on the left.

Turn right up Monroe at the Mountain Park development. Take another right at McNary Parkway and continue up the hill to Jefferson Parkway where you turn left. Turn right at Kerr Parkway for the 3/4 mile run back to the starting point.

Short Loop - this is a fine run through some beautiful country hidden away between the PCC campus and Lake Grove. Run south on 49th toward Mountain Park and watch for the Touchstone entrance at about 1 mile. Turn right here and drop down the hill. Take a right at Botticelli and run to the bottom of the hill and out of the development. Turn right at the first road (Melrose) and follow it west with trees on your right and an airport on your left.

Bear right at Forsberg and follow the road all the way to the west entrance of the campus on Lesser Road. Turn right into the campus and run uphill, bearing right at the first driveway. Run south past the track to the parking lot at the south end of the campus. Take a left and follow the outside edge of the parking lot uphill to the starting point.

Suggested by: Val Vitums

Suburban West Side

28

Hagg Lake Loop

Distance

10.4 mi. (16.6 km.)

Difficulty

10 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Parking lot at south end of dam face

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 10

Bad weather running - 9

Auto traffic - 7

Running Surface

Paved road

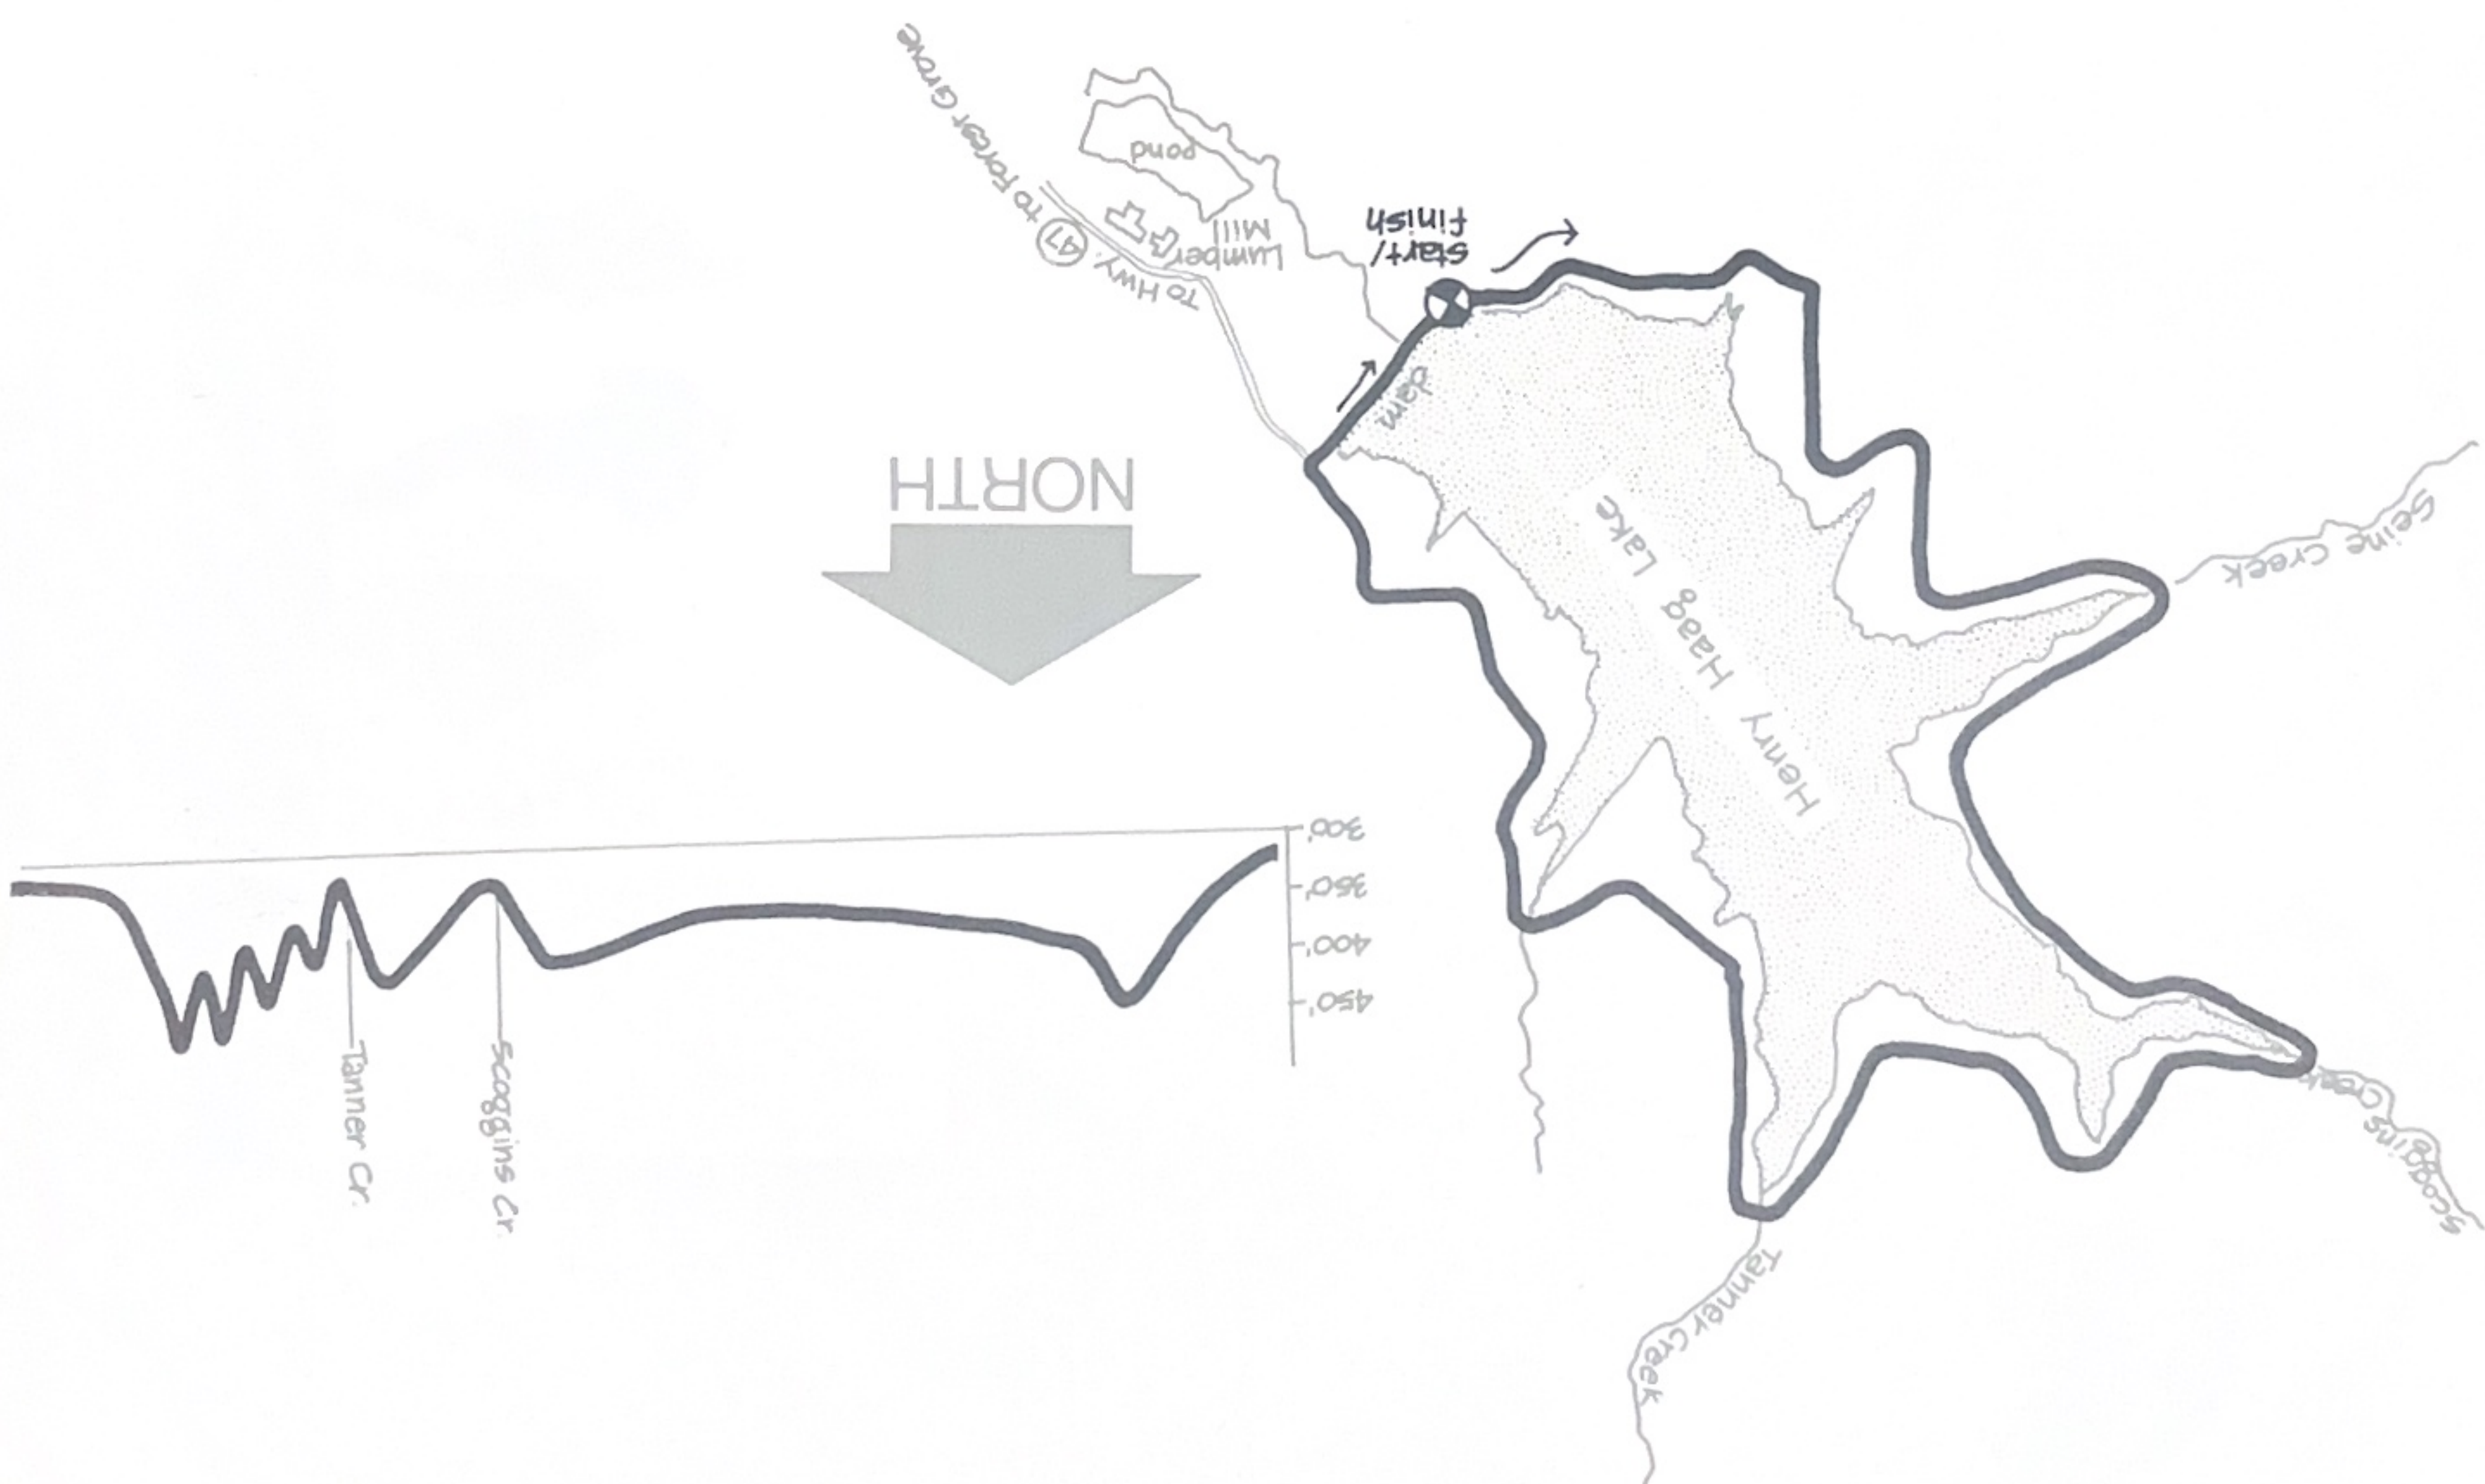

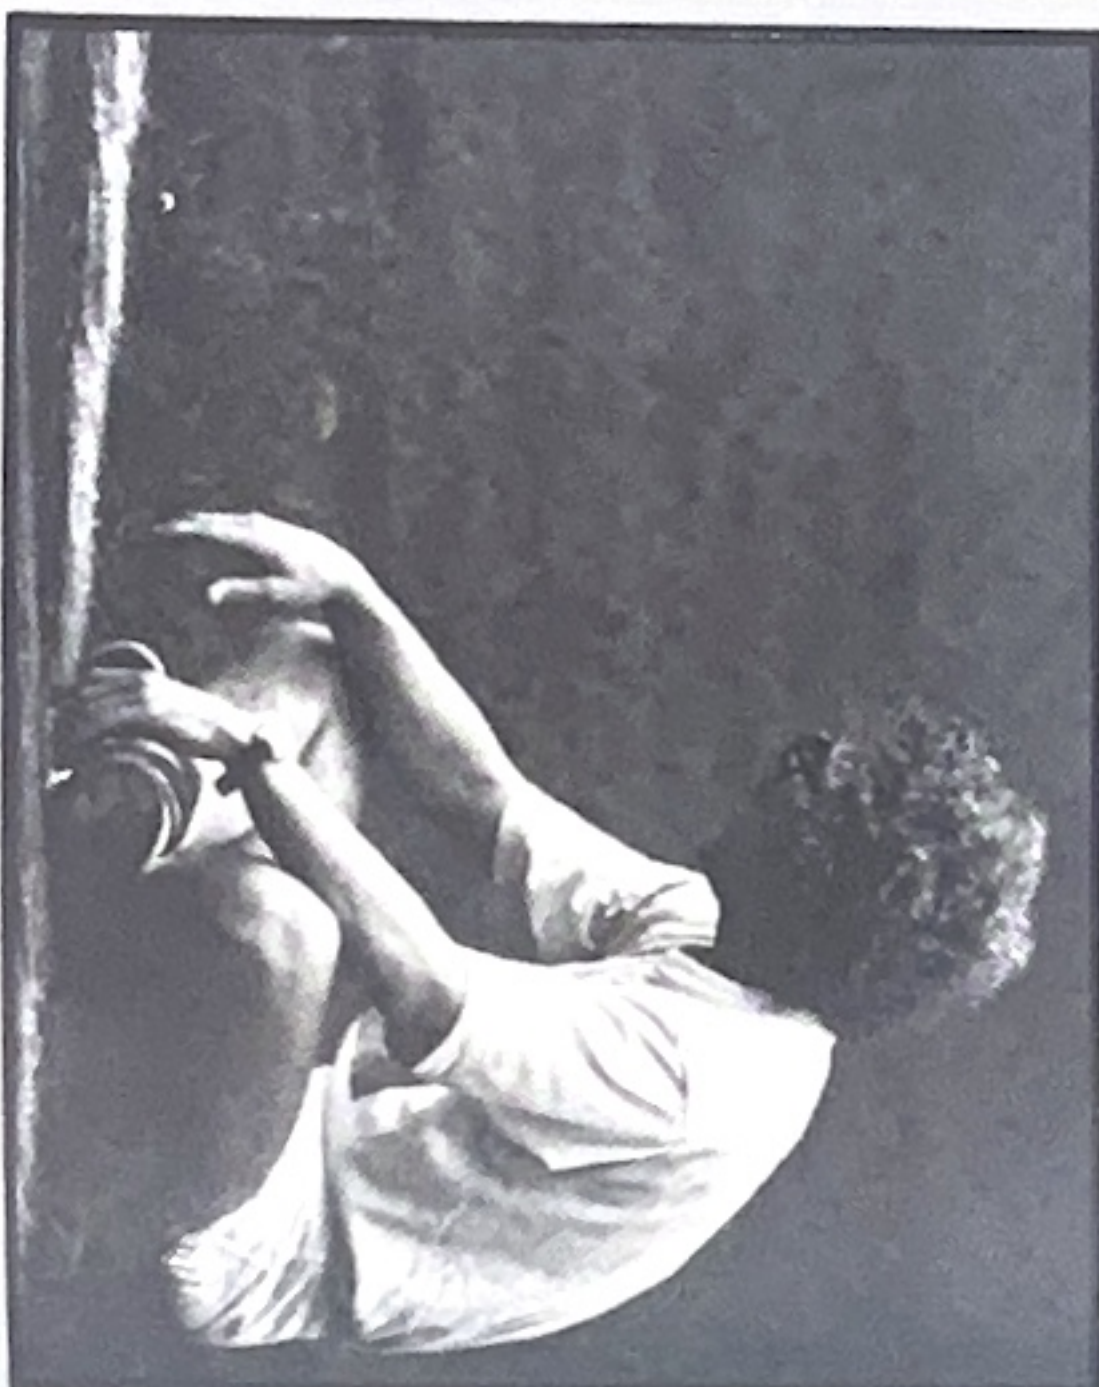

Here's another outstanding scenic route in a beautiful rustic setting. It is uncrowded and relatively unknown to most Portlanders with the exception of the Oregon Road Runners Club which sponsors two major runs a year there.

To get to Hagg Lake, take the Tualatin Valley Highway west of Portland through Hillsboro and Forest Grove. Stay on Highway 47 and take the right turn to Scoggins Valley Road crossing the dam to the parking lot.

Start the run by heading clockwise around the south end of the lake, taking it slow and easy and saving your energy for the hills on the other side. There are plenty of ups and downs as you can see from the course profile. The last hill is the highest, followed by a long, blissful descent down to the dam, where you turn right and run a flat half mile back to the parking lot.

On warm days, you may want to reward yourself with a dip in the cool water of the lake. There are picnic tables, so bring the family and make a day of it. Restrooms are available, but bring your own drinking water.

Suggested by: Don Wright

29

Lake Oswego Loop

Distance

7.5 mi. (12 km.)

Difficulty

6 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Lake Oswego Swim park

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 8

Bad weather running - 8

Auto traffic - 3

Running Surface

Paved roads and streets

This loop is another popular run with Oswego-area runners and is the course for the city's Parks Department annual August running event.

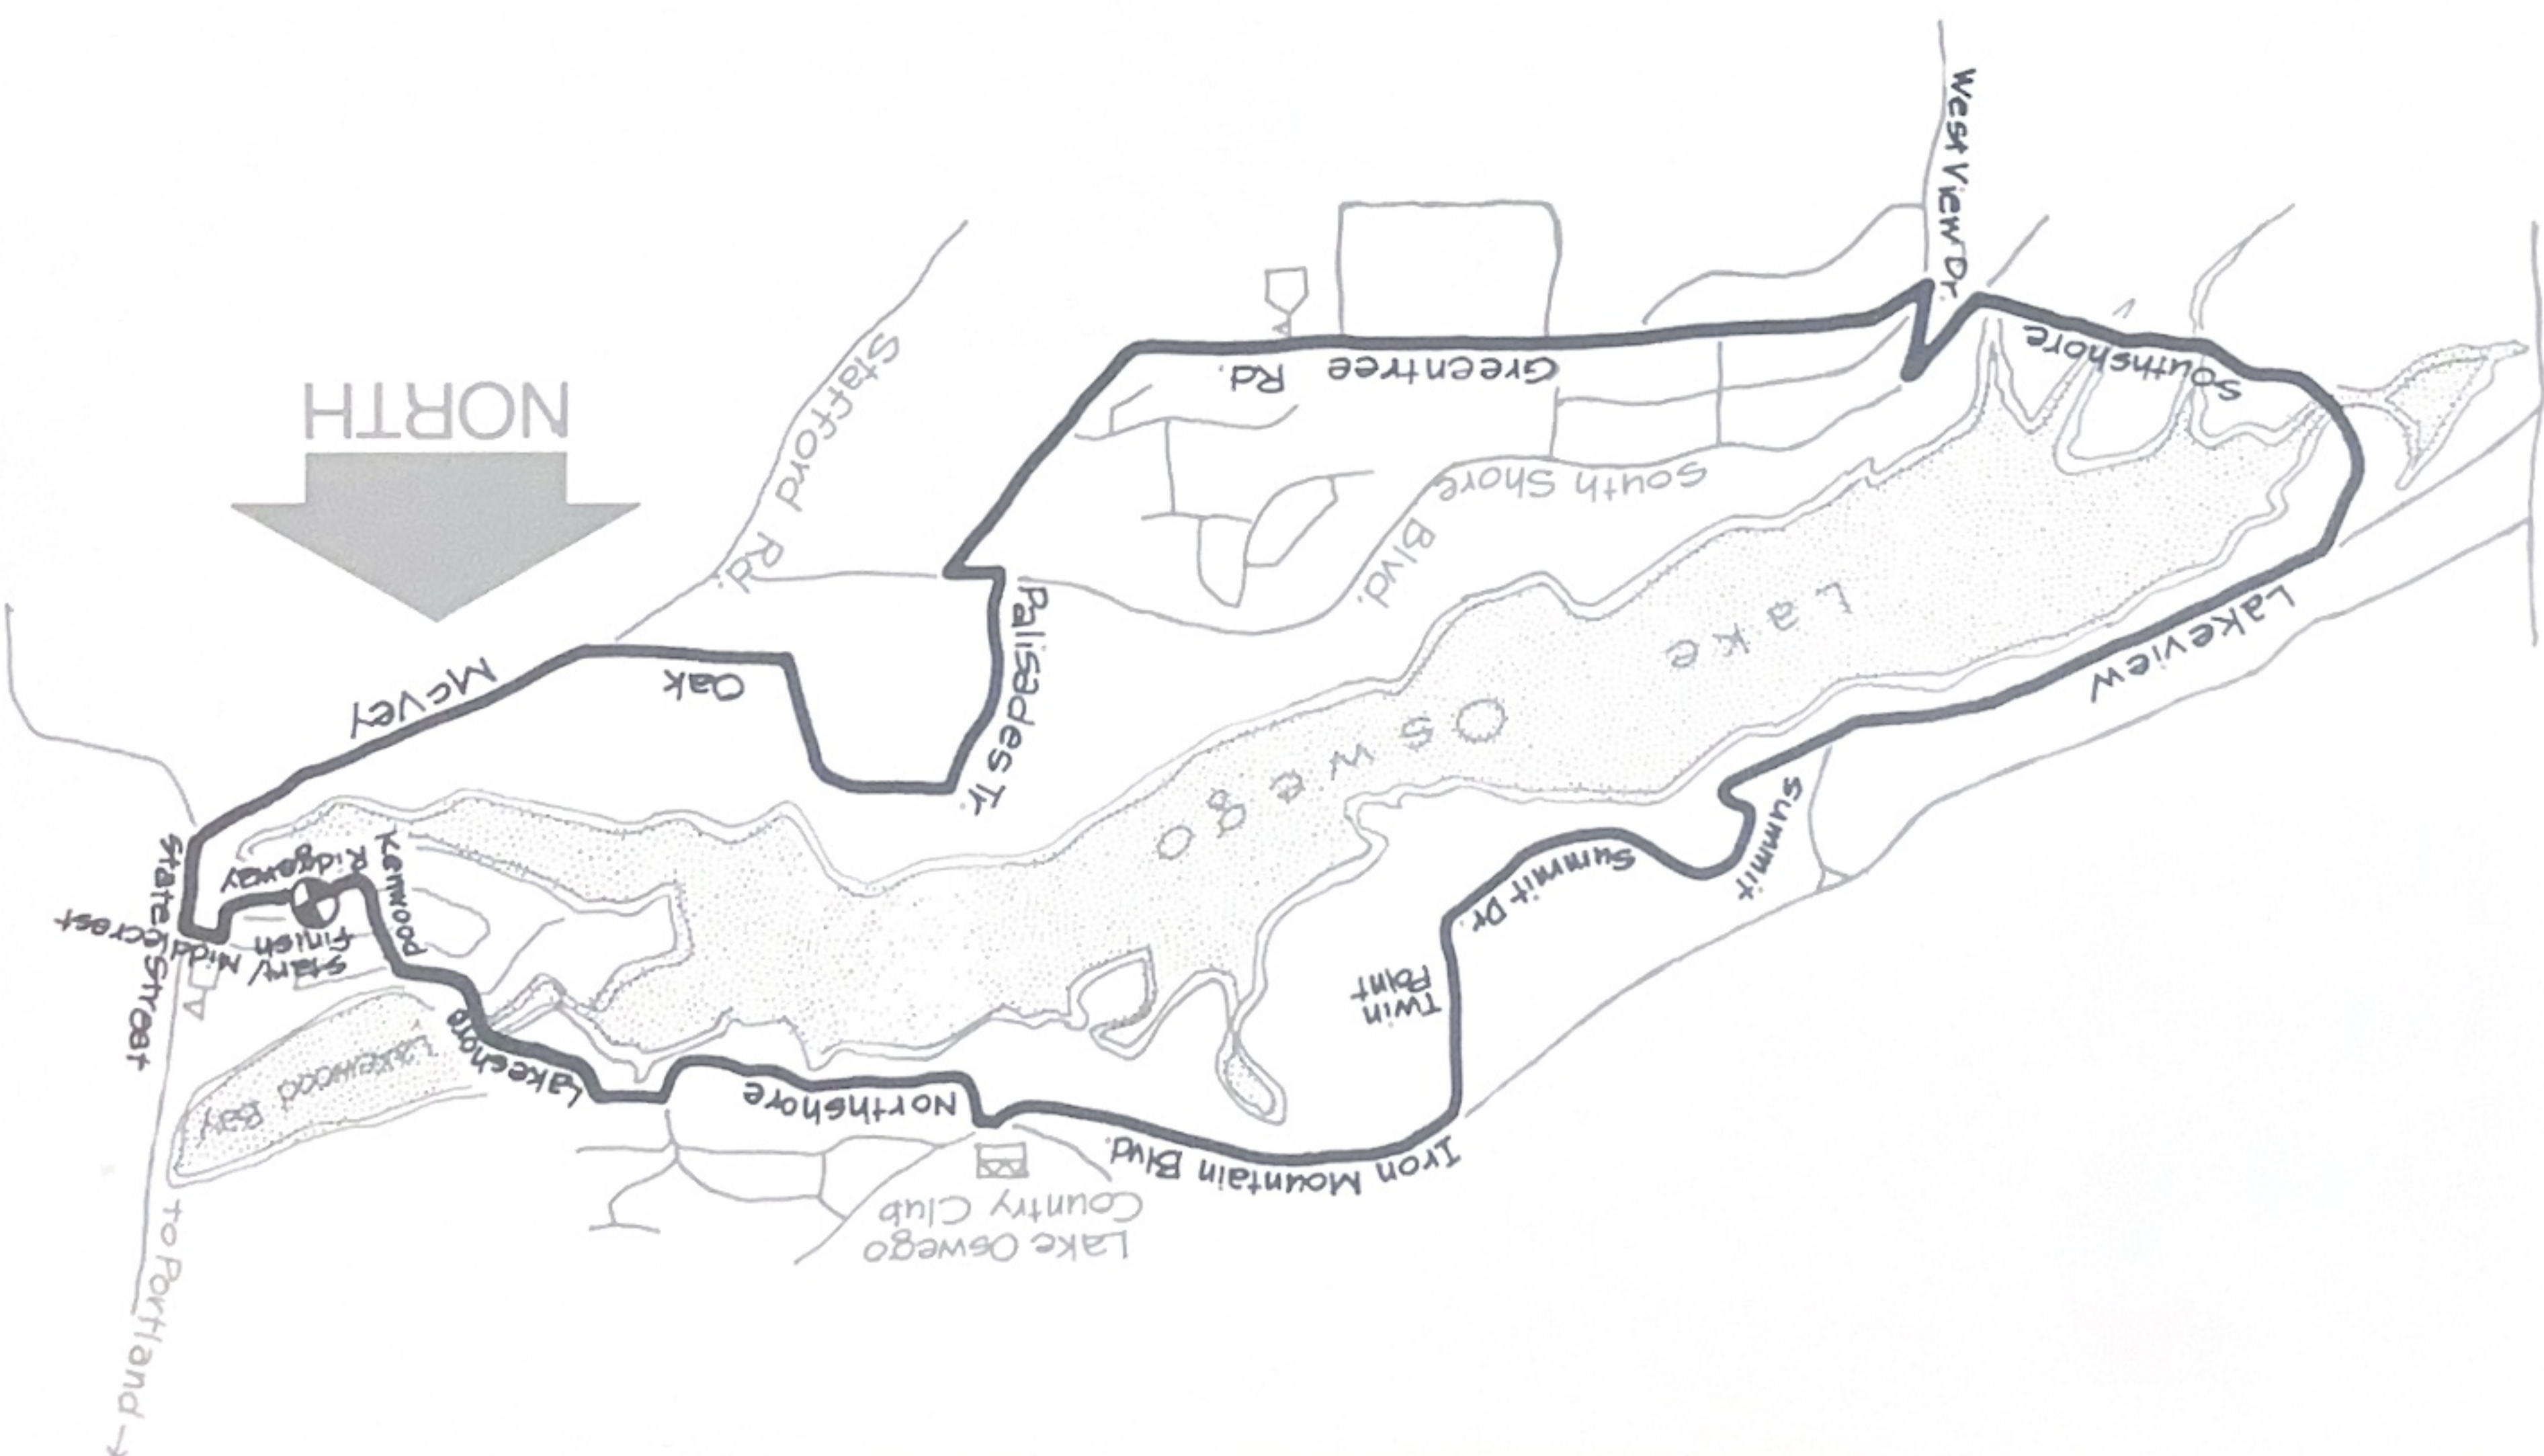

To get to the Swim Park follow Macadam Avenue 8 miles south of Portland on the west side of the Willamette River. Turn right at Ridgeway off State Street (Portland/Lake Oswego/West Linn Highway). Park at the intersection of Ridgeway and Lakewood by the park. Go either way you want, but we recommend starting around the south end and climbing the major hills first, leaving the easier going for the home stretch.

On the north side of the lake, don't miss the right turn off Iron Mountain Road onto Northshore to avoid ending up at the other end of town. The only drawback is traffic on some of the narrow roads so be alert, especially on the windy north side.

The loop combines rustic views of the lake and surrounding hills, wooded stretches and some of the most beautiful residential areas in the state. Be prepared for narrow, winding lanes, small bridges over streams and canals, enchanting glimpses of beautifully landscaped lawns, rock walls and tudor architecture all reminiscent of European cities.

After the run, weather providing, stay for a swim at the fine park. Facilities available there. No water available on the way.

Suggested by: John Hensala

30

Olympic Fund Run

Distance

6.2 mi. (10 km.)

Difficulty

4 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Lake Oswego Junior
High School

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 7

Bad weather running - 10

Auto traffic - 4

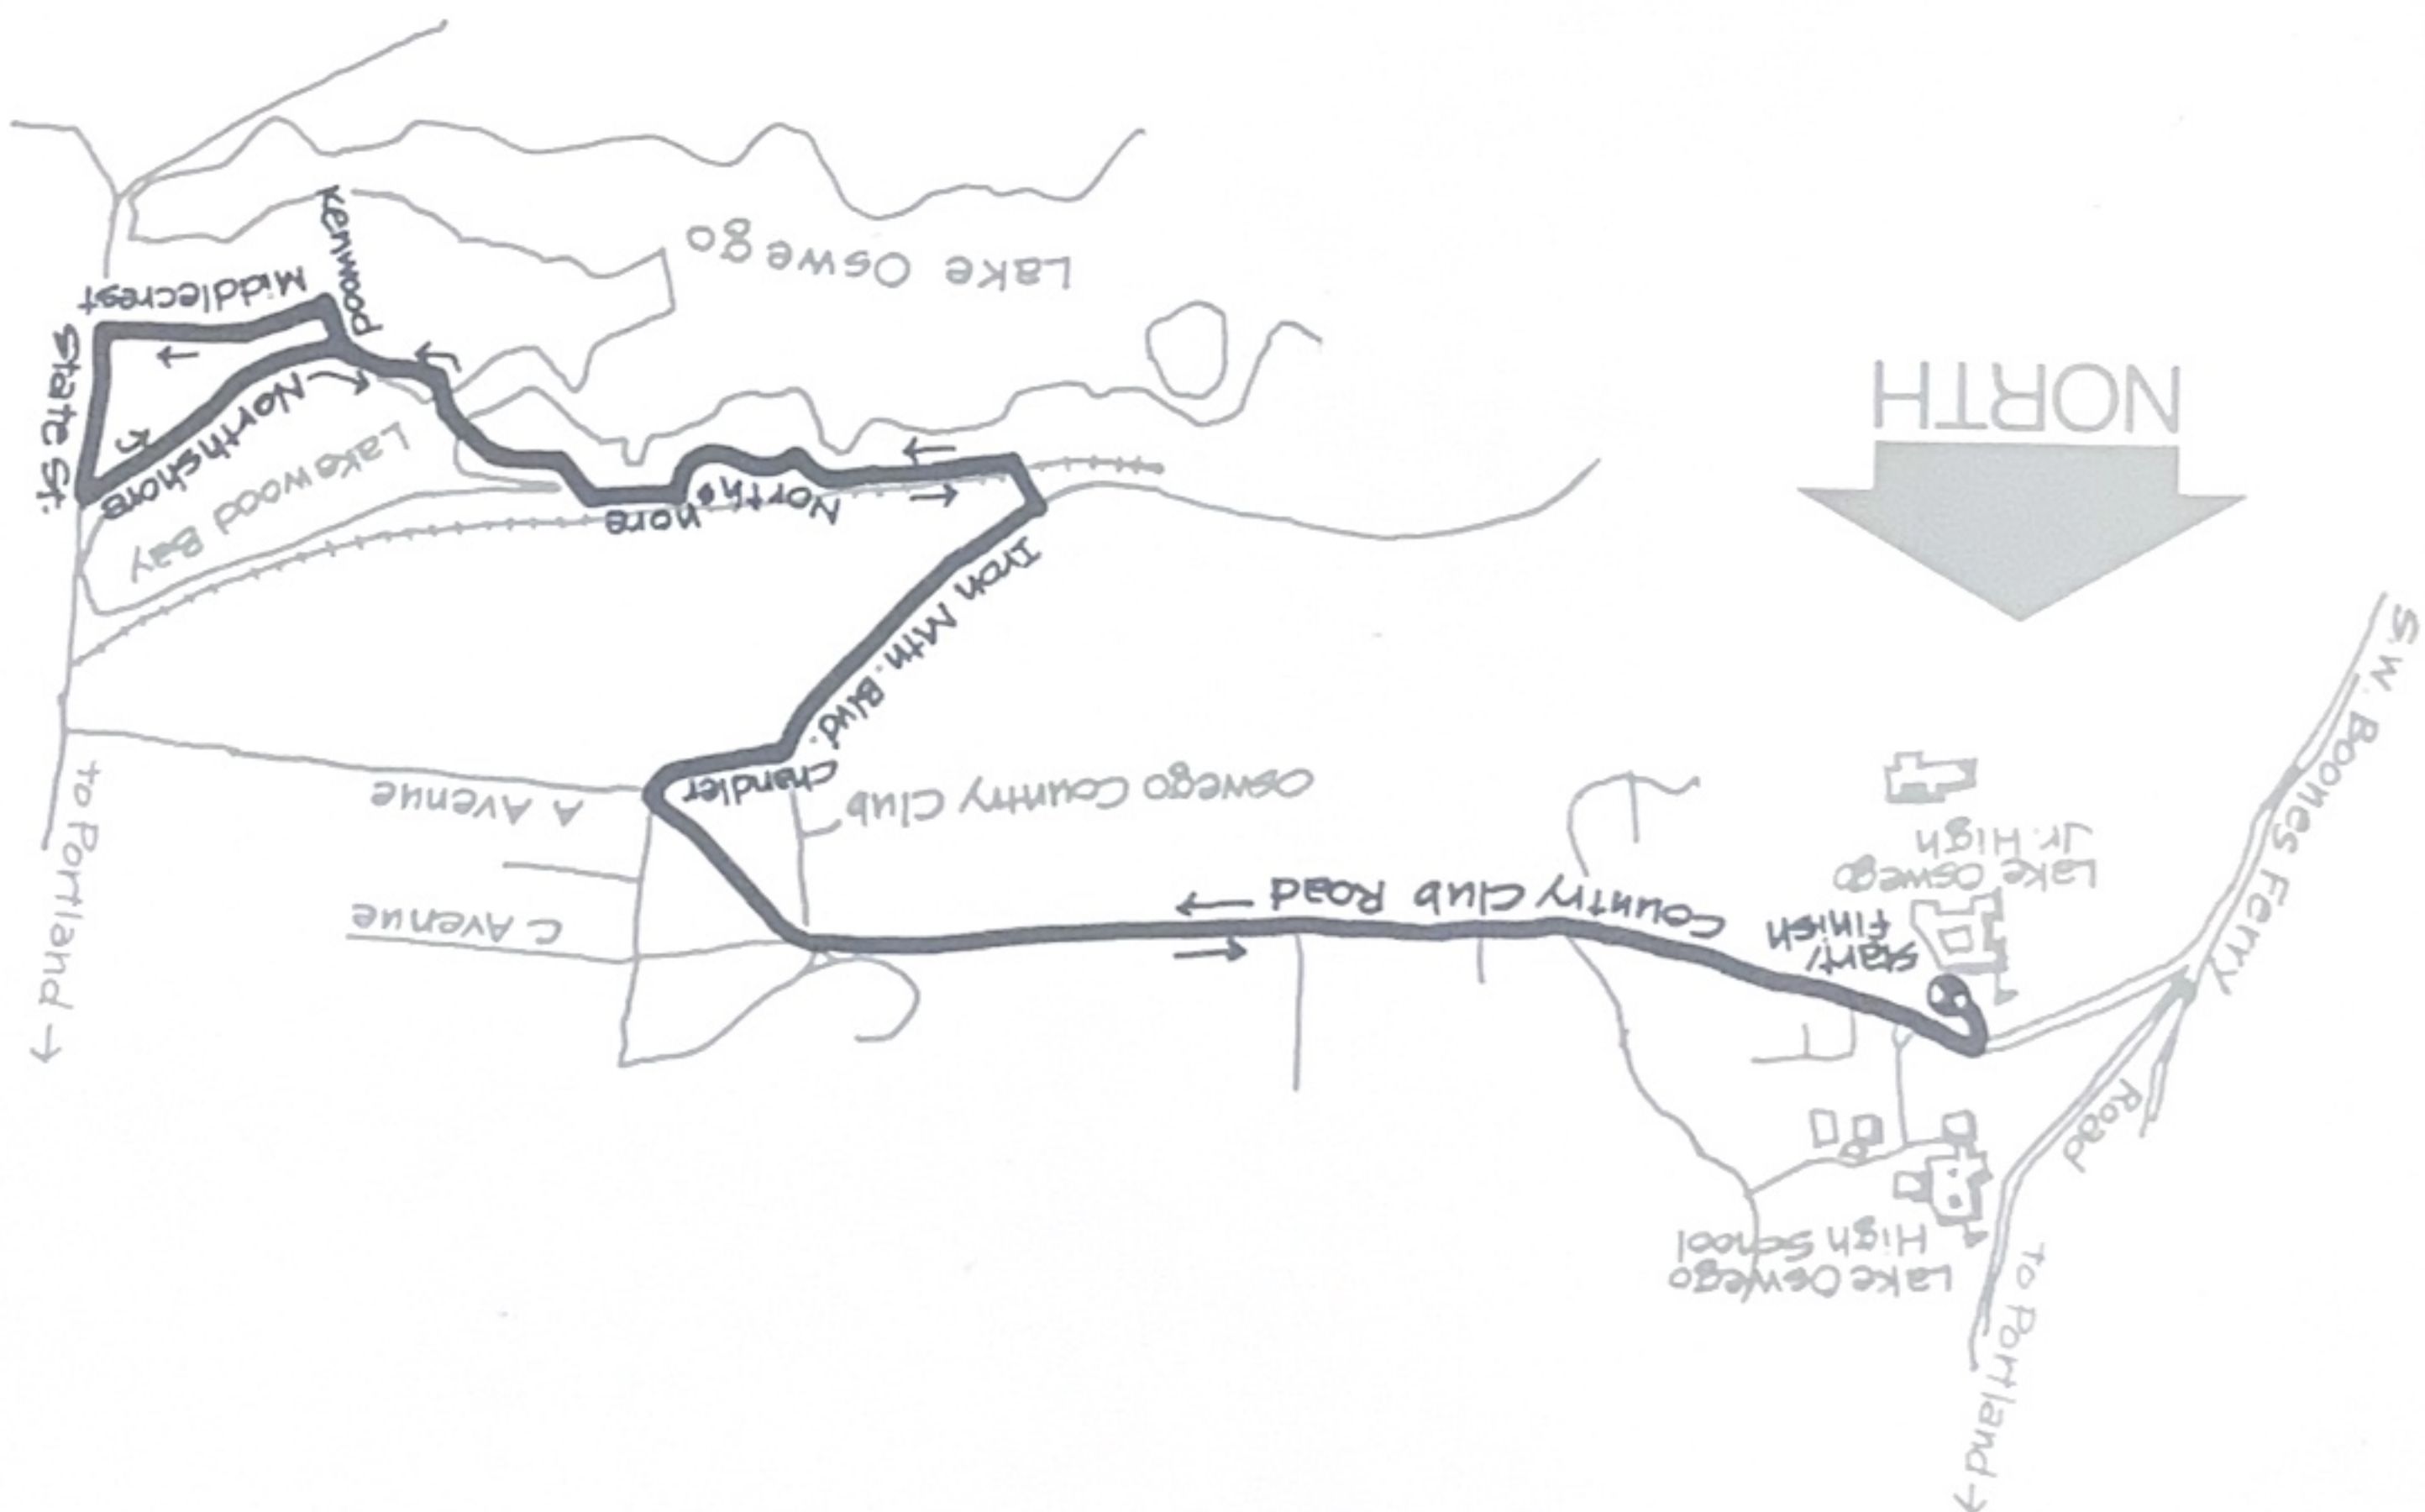

Running Surface

Paved road

The Lake Oswego area is a runners paradise, with its seemingly endless miles of rustic roads and charming country lanes bordering the lake. This course, which includes portions of the north side of the lake, is the scene of the annual Olympic Fund Run and includes a fine sampling of this area without many hills.

If you are approaching the start from Portland via the Macadam-State Street route, turn right at "A" Street (stop light) and follow it up through town as it jogs right and becomes Country Club Road. Stay on Country Club Road until you come to the Junior High on your left.

Park in the lot and run back down Country Club, all the way to the intersection with "A" Street, bearing right there down Chandler to Iron Mountain Road. There's just a short jog along State Street before you go left on Northshore and retrace your steps.

31

Old River Road Run

Distance

7.0 mi. (11.2 km.)

Difficulty

5 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

George Rogers Park in Lake Oswego

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 9

Bad weather running - 4

Auto traffic - 8

Running Surface

Dirt paths, paved roads and trails

If you've been looking for a run along the Willamette in a rustic setting, this is for you. This run links up two of the few publicly available forested trails along the Willamette in the Portland area. Although it is not a loop, the rewards are well worth the up and back.

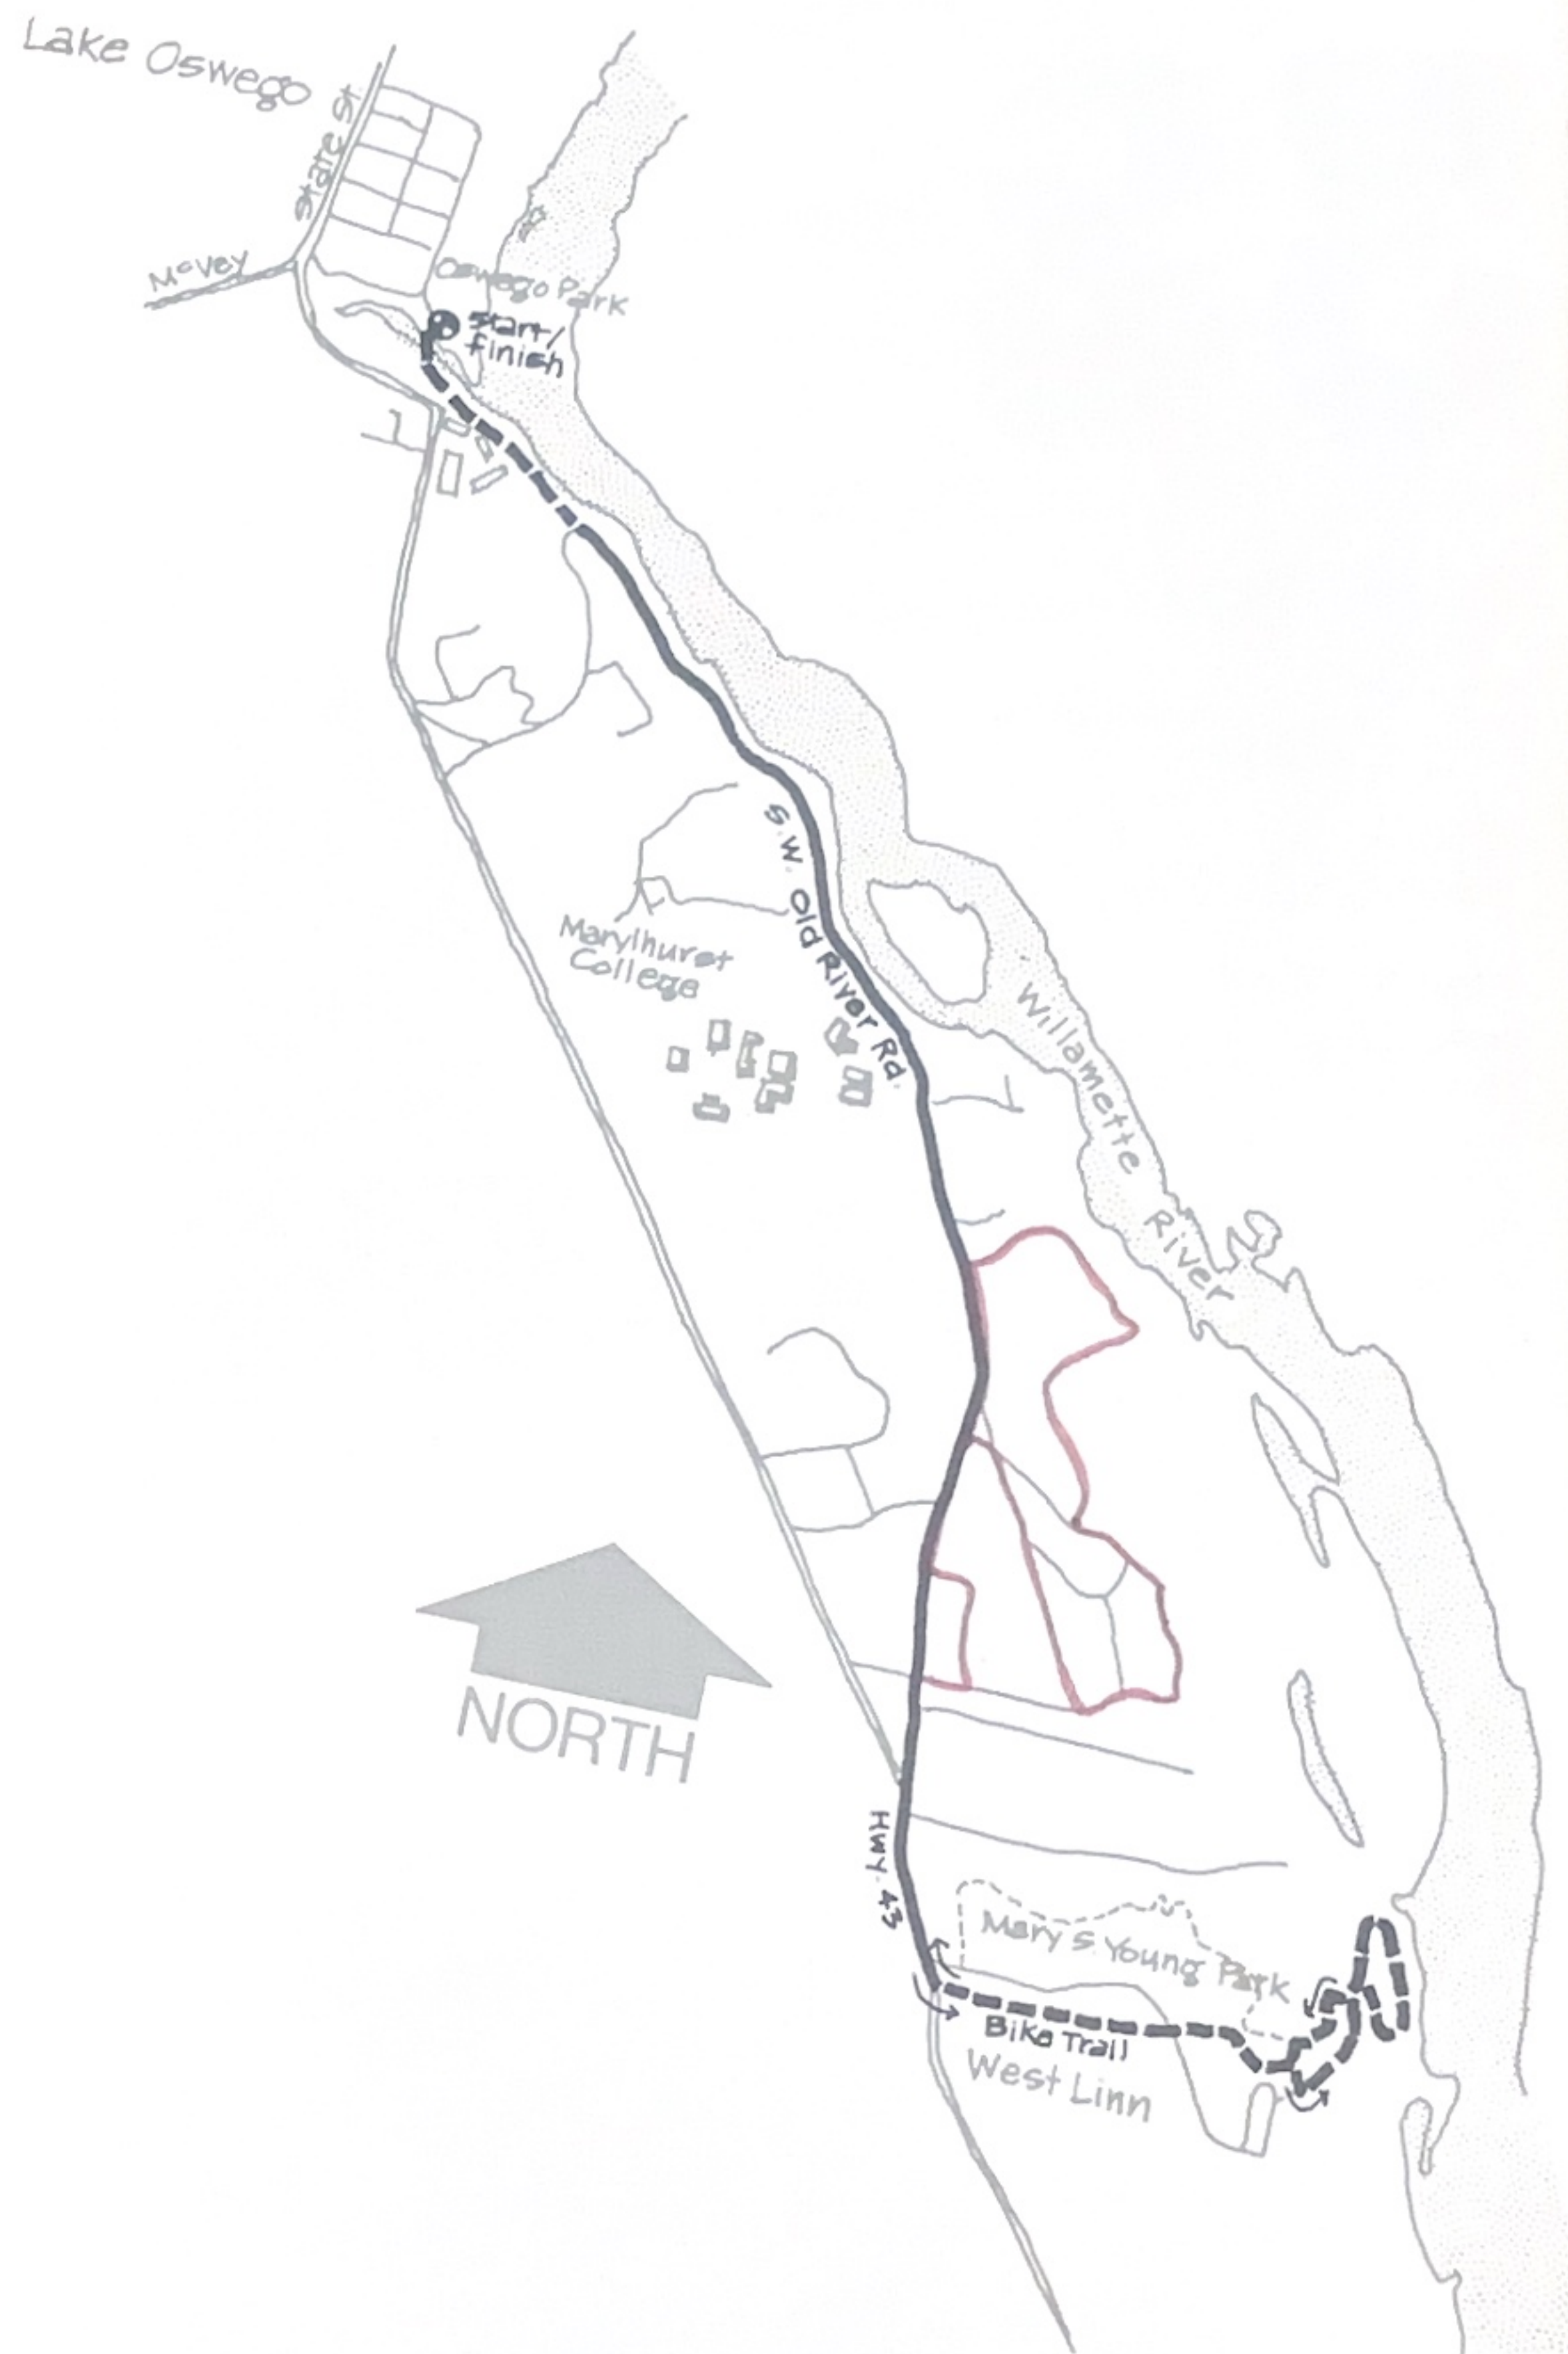

Drive through the center of Lake Oswego on State Street and take a left just beyond the playfield. Drive to the end of the road in the parking lot by the huge old stone smelting furnace. There's a water fountain by the furnace.

The run starts at the footbridge at the south end of the parking lot. Stay left over the bridge on a dirt path just a few yards above the river. Some 500 yards on, the trail runs into Old River Road on the other side of another footbridge.

Follow Old River Road as it winds for two miles along the river and up through the wooded suburbs of West Linn. Several BIKE PATH signs will keep you from getting lost. The road ends at the Oswego-West Linn Highway. Stay on the paved bike path on the east side of the highway and run south about 1/4 mile to the entrance of Mary S. Young State Park. Cross the driveway and stay on the bike path some 50 ft. beyond.

This will take you into the park where there are restrooms and water. Stay right at the first fork of the path in the park and follow the sign saying RIVER VIEWPOINT. As you descend the hill, take the small circle on your right to the viewpoint. Coming out on the main trail again, continue downhill to a fork. Either path will take you down to a grassy meadow at the edge of the Willamette River. Cross the meadow and use the other path to return to the main trail. Just beyond the fork on the right is a dam and a sign pointing to the Perimeter Hiking Trail. Take this trail back up the hill via wooden bridges, stairs and dirt trail. This will take you back to the picnic area and parking lot in Mary S. Young Park where you came in.

Now, retrace your footsteps back down Old River Road to George Rogers Park.

to Portland and Lake Oswego

Marylhurst College

Start/Finish

Marylhurst Dr

Pacific Hwy 4th

Old River Rd

Mary S. Young Park

NORTH

Rosemont Rd

Day Rd

S. Bland Circle

Summit St

Skyline Dr

Wilderness Park

West Linn High School

West A St

to Oregon City

100'

200'

300'

400'

500'

600'

700'

Marylhurst Dr

Bland Circle

33

Lawrence Loop

Distance

3.6 mi. (km.)

Difficulty

3 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

Intersection of S. Rosemont and Wisteria Roads west of West Linn

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 8

Bad weather running - 10

Auto traffic - 8

Running Surface

Paved and dirt roads

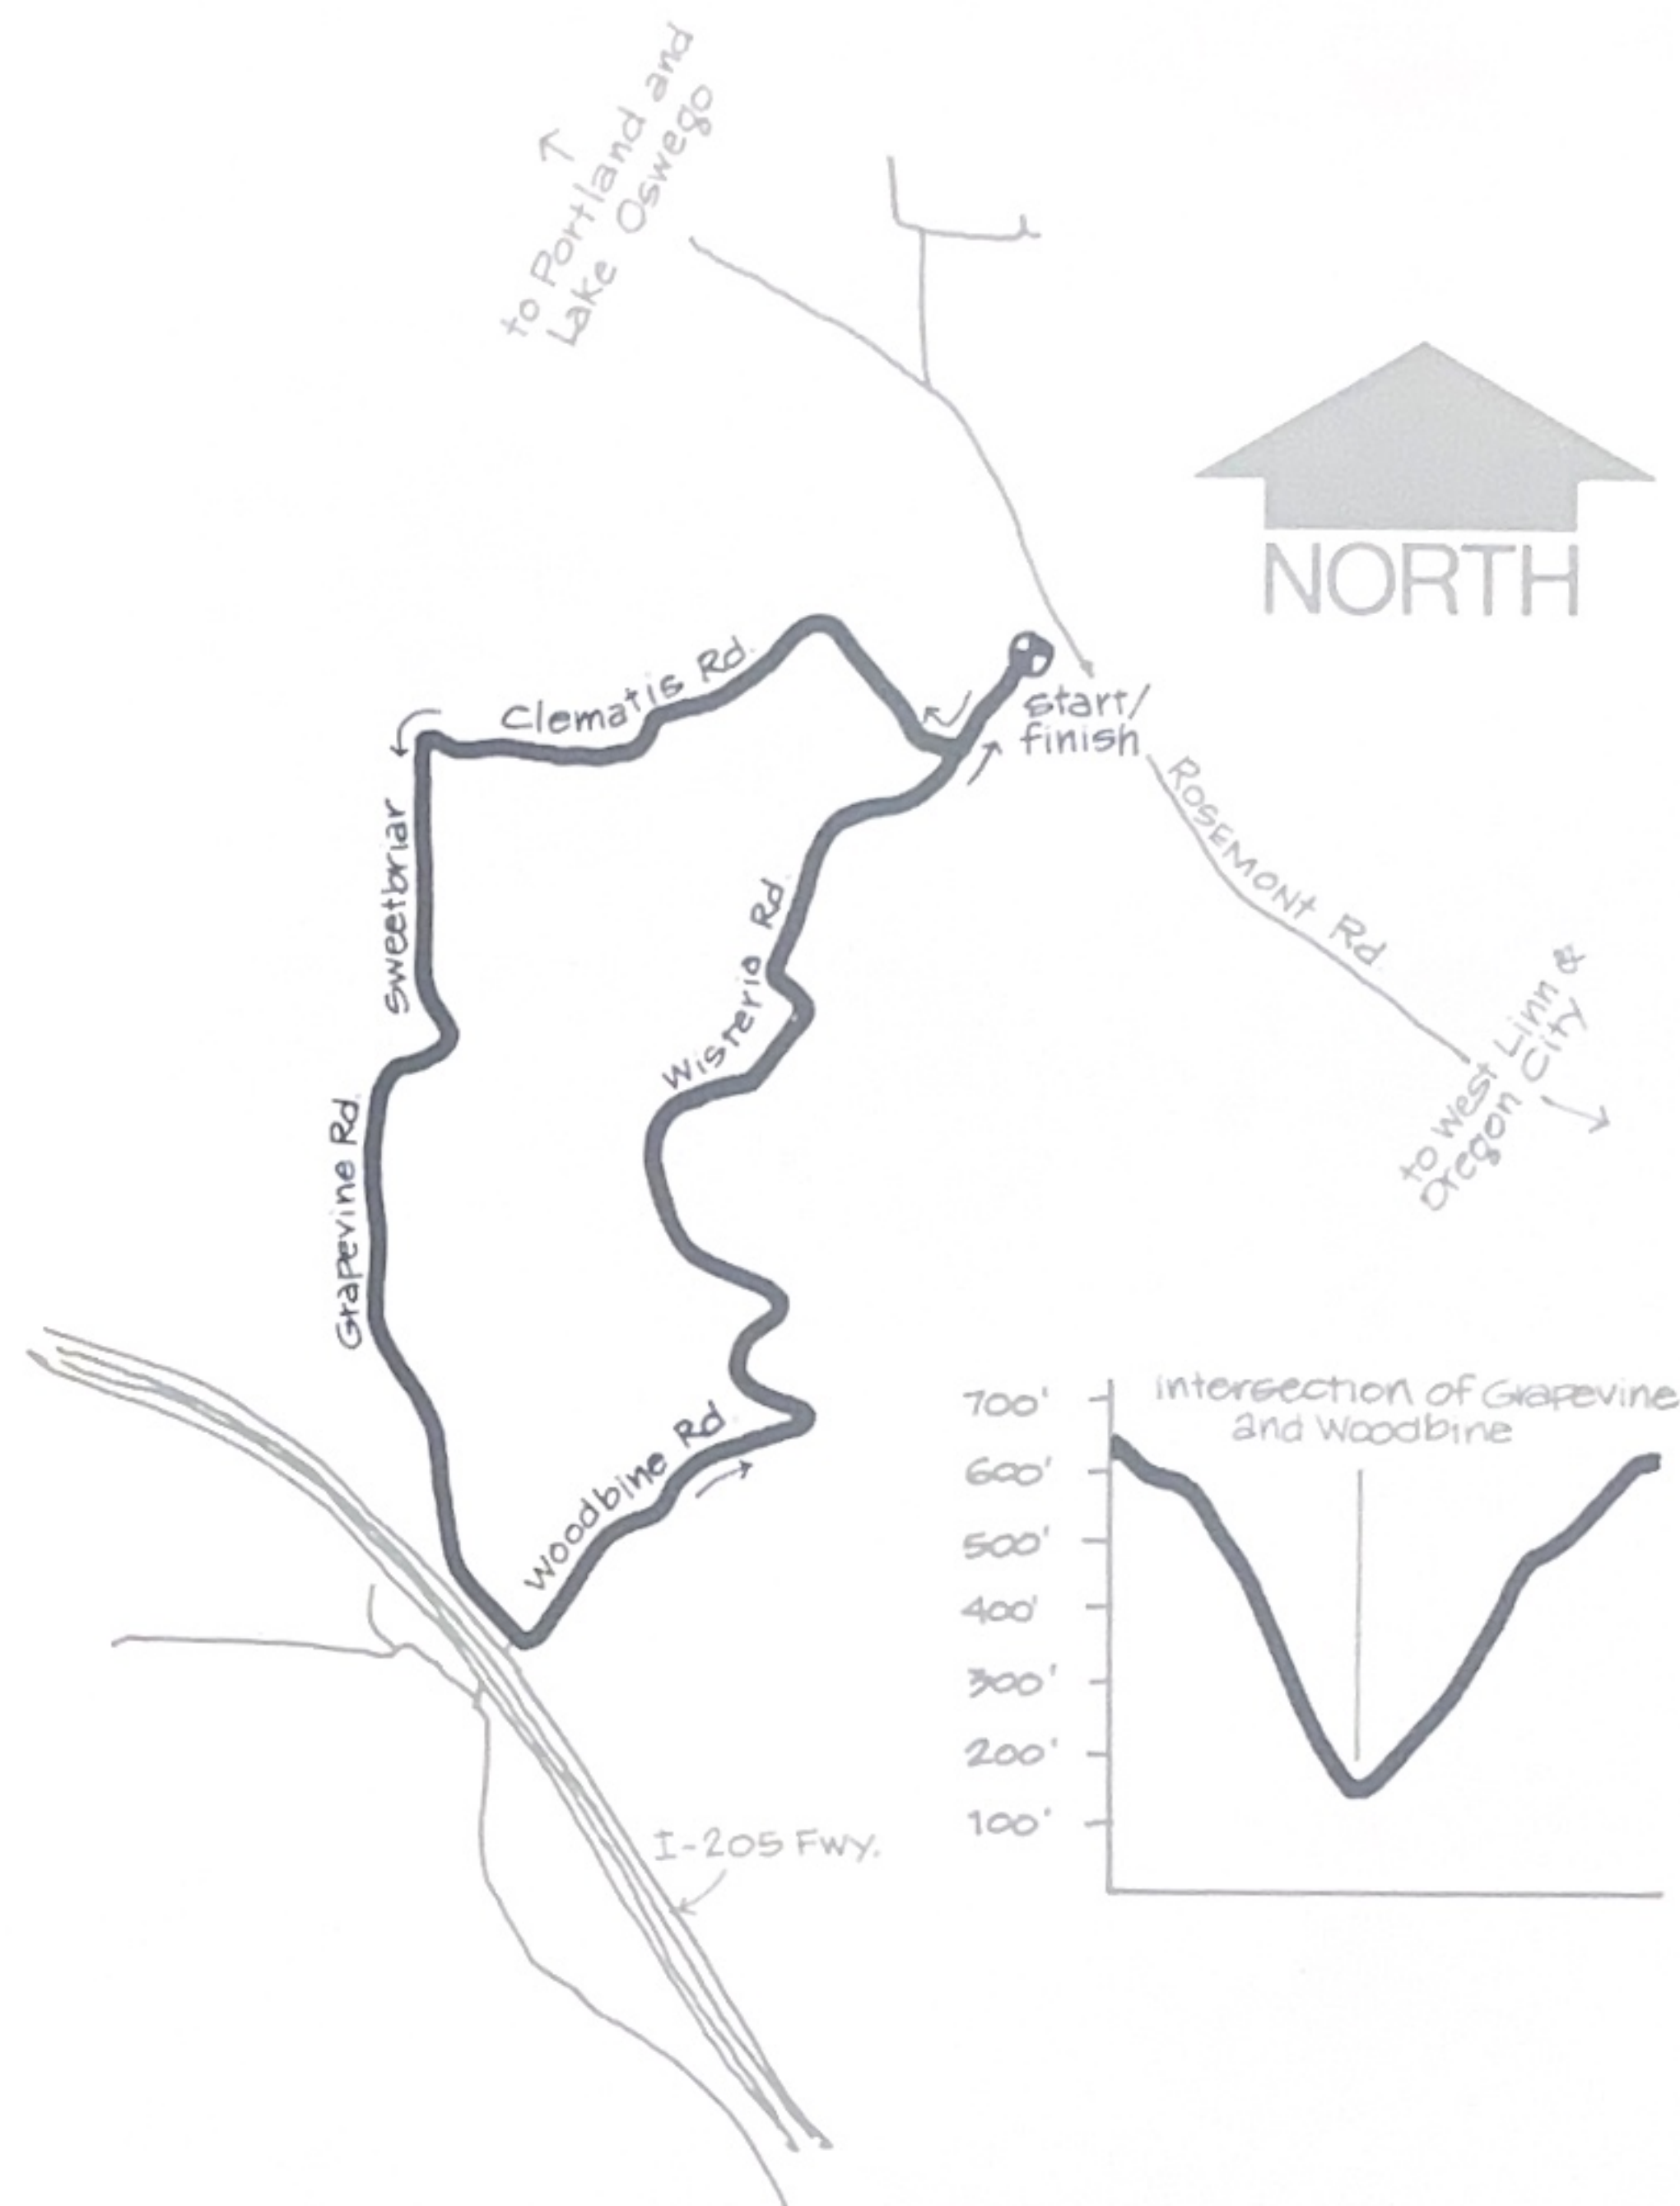

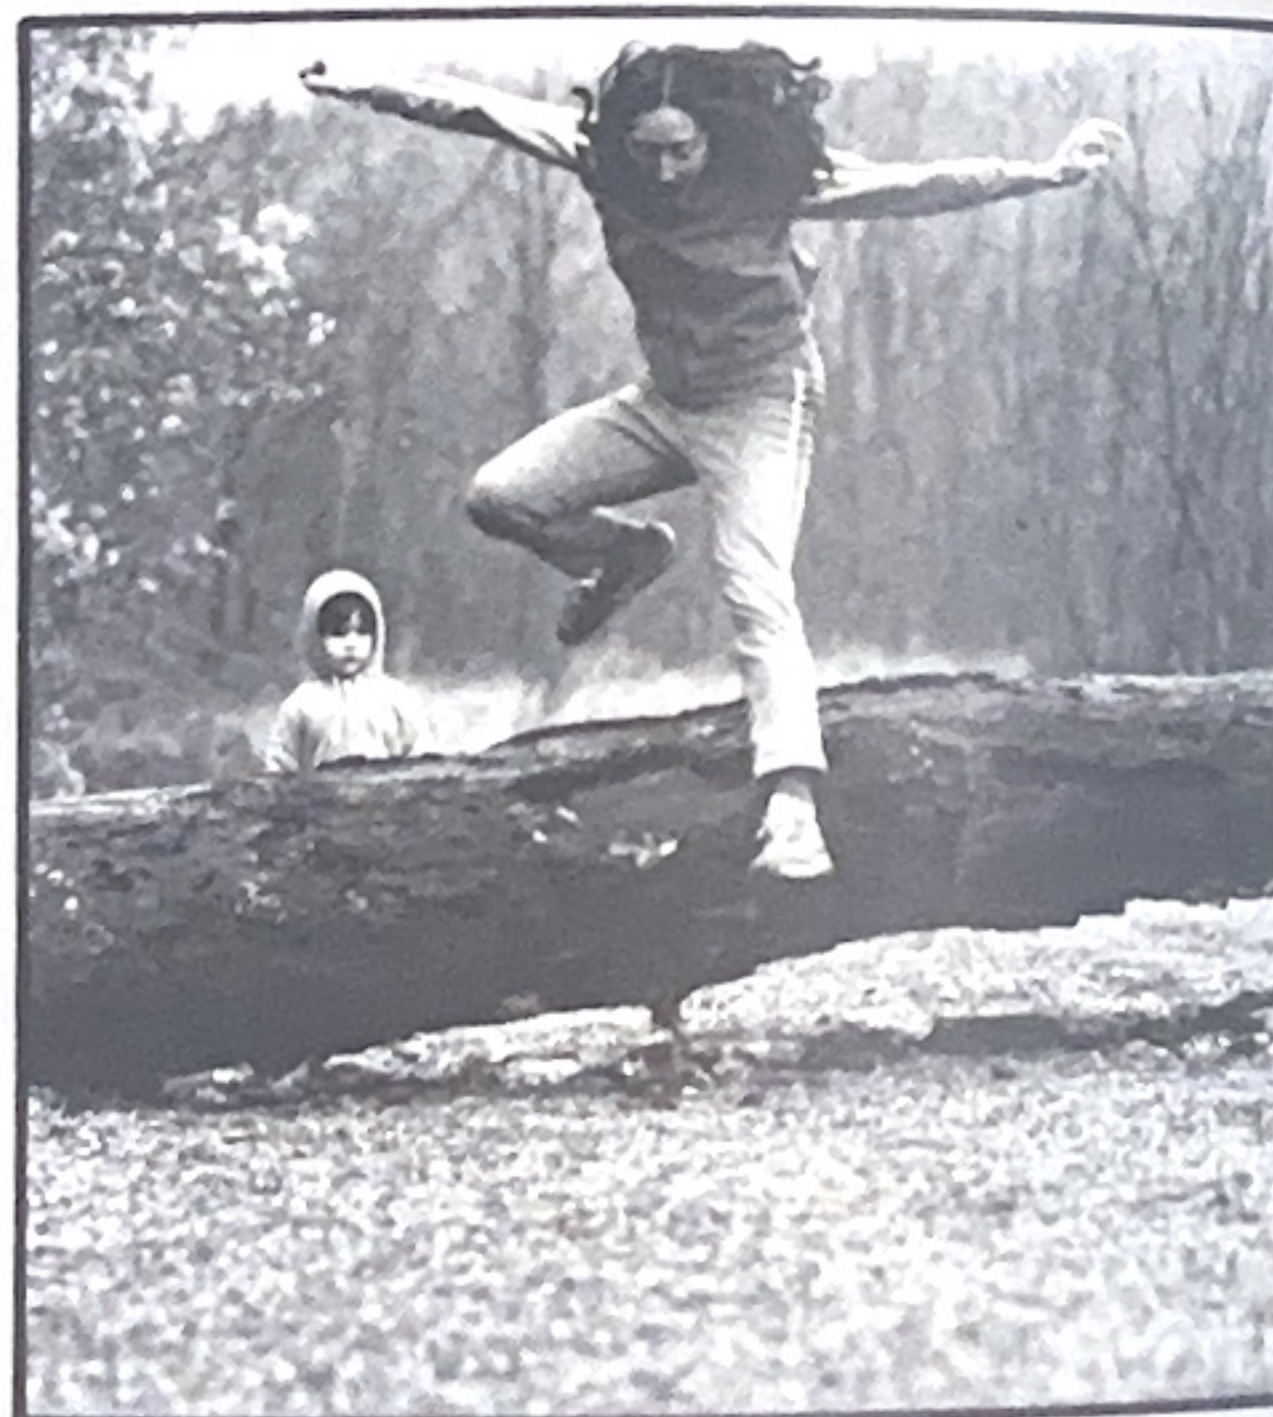

This is a lovely loop along shady country lanes, with grazing animals and secluded rural homes backdropped by fine views of the Tualatin Valley country.

To get to the Rosemont/Wisteria intersection, follow the directions in the Killer Kowalski run up Marylhurst Drive to Valleyview. Go left to Suncrest Avenue, then right, and you'll come out on Rosemont. Turn left and you'll come to Wisteria about 500 yds. east.

If you want to start by running downhill and finish running uphill, park on the shoulder along Wisteria just below the STOP sign. You'll take a right at Clematis Road and follow that dirt road to Sweetbriar and turn left. At the next intersection, keep bearing right and the road turns into Grapevine. Now you'll be paralleling the Tualatin River (below on your right) as you descend to the valley floor at the Woodbine intersection before turning left and heading back up to your car.

An alternative parking place is at the intersection of Woodbine and Grapevine Roads by the freeway. In that case, you start uphill and finish downhill.

Suggested by: Julie and Ryan Lawrence

34

Helvetia/West Union Loop

Distance

11.2 mi. (17.9 km.)

Difficulty

9 (Most difficult = 10)

Beginning Point

West Union School

Conditions

(Best Conditions = 10)

Aesthetics - 10

Bad weather running - 6

Auto traffic - 7

Running Surface

Paved Road

This run combines pioneer churches and cemeteries with railroad trestles, beautiful farm land and two of the earthiest taverns in the Portland area.

Drive west on Sunset Highway about 15 miles from downtown Portland to the Helvetia exit. Turn right and follow Helvetia Road about 3/4 mile to West Union Road. Go left, and park about 100 yards up the road at the West Union Grade School.

Leaving the parking lot, run east on West Union Road passing the West Union Baptist Church and cemetery at about 1 mile. The church was built in 1853 and is the oldest Baptist church west of the Rocky Mountains. Continue on about 1/2 mile and turn left on Old Cornelius Pass Road. Descend gently through trees and rural houses, coming out on Cornelius Pass Road. Turn left and follow this highway for about a mile, going left where it rejoins Old Cornelius Pass Road.

On your left you'll pass the Phillips Cemetery, the second of three pioneer cemeteries along the route. At about the 4 mile point you'll come to Phillips Road with the Rock Creek Tavern on your right overlooking a lovely farming valley. Turn left on Phillips past a deserted red school house on the right, and continue up this country lane under the railroad trestle to the Helvetia Road intersection at about 6 miles.

Turn right on Helvetia Road and run through the charming community of Helvetia with the tavern on your left. Stay on the left of the road as you'll have some sharp turns ahead. You'll encounter hills along this stretch of Helvetia Road, each offering wide vistas of the surrounding country side. Over the crest of the last hill is the Helvetia Community Church built in 1899 and sporting a 65 foot spire. Go left at Jackson Quarry Road to West Union Road and left again through spacious open country back to the school. No restrooms or water are available on the route except at the two taverns.

Suggested by: Ken Weidkamp

